REICH OBJECTS TO PLAN DRAWN ON REPARATION

Finds Fault With 3 Points Suggested by 5-Power Conference.

SOLUTION OF TANGLE IS DELAYED FURTHER

Way Believed Open for Compromise; Committte Studies Step to Take Next.

Lausanne, July 3 (U.P.).—A final solution of the reparations tangle was delayed tonight when Germany objected to three points in the settlement proposed by Great Britain, France, Italy, Belgium and Japan.

The Germans, after a day of conferences, protested:

1—The total of 4,200,000,000 marks (about $1,000,000,000) which it was proposed the Reich should pay into a European reconstruction fund in lieu of reparations.

2—The new form of the so-called "safeguarding clause," which would loosely bind Germany to pay more if Europe's war debts to the United States are not readjusted.

3—The conditions under which the payment to the reconstruction fund would be due on the revival of economic prosperity after a three years' moratorium. Germany insisted on a five years' moratorium, it was understood.

Germany Opposed to Method.

The German objection to the safeguarding clause was brought about by the method proposed by the creditor powers. While they are supposed to have reached a "gentlemen's agreement" not to make a reparations solution conditional on reduction of debts owed America, they did propose that the reparations settlement must be ratified by all powers concerned.

This would permit France or any other nation to disrupt the settlement by failing to ratify it, in event the United States did not reduce debts. Germany insisted the powers should agree on the plan at Lausanne, leaving only the Reichstag to ratify the terms. A compromise is expected later this week.

May Issue Ultimatum.

The steering committee of the reparations conference received the German position at 6 p. m. and resumed negotiations to decide the next step. It has been said they might resort to an ultimatum to force Germany to accept.

The German reply to the general proposal was not a flat rejection. They merely outlined their objections to various clauses and presumably left the door open for compromise. It was believed these negotiations would require several days, particularly as French Premier Edouard Herriot is delayed in Paris by domestic political issues and can not return until the middle of this week.

Trial of Society Matron to Start

Mrs. E. V. Barney Will Face Court Today on Charge of Murder.

London, July 3 (A.P.).—Old Bailey will be the scene tomorrow of one of the most sensational trials Britain has known in years. Mrs. Elvira Dolores Barney, estranged wife of a New York cabaret singer, faces the bar of justice to answer a charge of slaying Thomas William Scott Stephen, young man-about-town.

Under the laws of England, if murder is proved, she would have to be sentenced to death, although in other cases there have been commutations of such sentences.

Intense public interest has been displayed, but there is room for only 36 spectators in the courtroom.

Romance, wealth, family prominence and the impetuousness of youth combine to make the trial sensational. Mrs. Barney, charged with the "murder by shooting" of Stephen, whose body was found in her apartment May 31 after a cocktail party, is the daughter of Sir John and Lady Mullens.

Hindenburg PensCordial Note on Arms to Hoover

Berlin, July 3 (A.P.).—President Paul von Hindenburg sent President Hoover a friendly message today in connection with the American President's proposal for a general reduction in armaments.

"I hope the bonds of friendship already existing between the American and German people may be further tightened and at the same time I hope confidently that the action initiated through your high-minded message to the Disarmament Conference may be crowned with complete success along the lines of true pacification of the peoples," the message said.

Slayer of 7 Shot Dead In Harlan Mine Feud

Bill Randolph, Notorious Gunman and Deputy, Slain; Armed Friends Aid Assassin's Escape; Two Others Meet Death by Bullets.

Harlan, Ky., July 3 (U.P.).—Bill Randolph, 30, Harlan County's toughest gunman, met death as he had dealt it many times when he was slain by Clarence Middleton, near Three-Point coal camp, this afternoon.

While Randolph, a deputy constable at the coal camp, credited with seven killings, stood amid eight deputy sheriffs, he was shot several times by Middleton, who escaped when a group of twelve or fifteen men came out of hiding, and, armed with rifles and machine guns, prevented any attempt to arrest him.

According to the reports from deputy sheriffs, Randolph was walking up the railroad track near Three-Point with Jim Jones and Green Unthank when some one fired from ambush with a high-powered rifle. The bullet grazed Randolph's shoulder and killed Jones.

Unthank and Randolph went to the telephone and called Sheriff John Henry Blair, at Harlan, who sent eight deputies to the spot where the amubush occurred.

Randolph went back with the deputies and as they stood there, according to the deputies' story, Middleton, reportedly an enemy of Randolph, came up and asked:

"What's happened here?"

Randolph started to tell him when Middleton drew a pistol and fired several times. He was about two feet away from Randolph when he fired, it was reported.

Before the deputies could seize Middleton, they said 12 or 15 armed men came out of hiding and surrounded them.

Randolph, mortally wounded, lay on the ground. An unidentified man walked up to him, placed the muzzle of a shotgun in his abdomen and pulled the trigger. Randolph died instantly.

The deputies said that an electric railway bus came along, the men stopped it, and Middleton got on and went off toward Three Point. The BONUS ARMY PARADE TO BEGIN AT 10 A.M.

15,000 Will Start March at Peace Monument; Autos Will Be Barred.

After a week of sketchy drilling, the bonus-seeking legions encamped here this morning will stage their second parade since their occupation of Washington six weeks ago.

The army, led by its 34-year-old commander, Walter W. Waters, will begin its march up Pennsylvania avenue from Peace Monument at 10 o'clock. All of the estimated 15,000 veterans will make the journey on foot, Waters having banned vehicles from the parade.

Hunger pangs will undoubtedly be present among the marchers. At Camp Marks, in Anacostia, last night there was only cracked wheat on hand for the breakfasts today of most of the men. At Camp Bartlett, on Alabama avenue, where 2,000 are billeted, only two meals were served yesterday.

All police leave for the duration of the parade has been canceled and Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford, superintendent of police, has worked out a comprehensive plan for handling the marchers. No disorders are anticipated and Waters has sternly warned his men against any untoward actions. He has strictly instructed against the carrying of banners that might be in any way offensive.

Wives and children of the veterans will march in the parade. Waters

Hindu-Moslem Rioting Adds 7 More to Toll

Bombay, India, July 3 (U.P.).—Rioting between Hindus and Moslems threatened again tonight to mount to a stage as serious as the recent disorders in which more than 150 persons were killed. Tension was greater after a week-end of outbreaks in which seven persons were killed, raising the total to thirteen since last Wednesday.

Police frequently clashed with mobs, sometimes firing at the rioters and other times breaking up groups by charges with lathi. There have been 2,552 casualties, including 197 killed, in communal riots since May 14.

WATERS SURRENDER BODIES OF 3 VICTIMS

Two of Men Missing Since Last Week; Third Dies as Wife Looks On.

The Potomac River and its tributaries yesterday yielded two bodies they had claimed in the last few days and took the life of a third man as his wife watched a futile attempt to rescue him.

A military board will investigate the death of Corpl. David A. Quick, 29, stationed at Bolling Field, whose body was found floating in the Eastern Branch, opposite the navy yard, by Charles Webber, a member of the bonus army staying at Camp Marks.

Seized with a cramp while swimming in Occoquan Run near Occoquan, Va., John Alton Lynn, 29, of Woodridge, Va., was drowned.

Searchers yesterday afternoon recovered the body of C. A. Patterson, 32-year-old Washington carpenter, drowned Saturday while swimming in the Potomac River at Widewater, Md.

Quick, who had been miss ng since Thursday, was fully clothed when found. Webber notified the Harbor Police, who recovered the body.

Dr. C. J. Murphy, deputy coroner, held an autopsy and issued a certificate of death by drowning, whether accidental or otherwise yet to be determined. The body was in an advanced state of decomposition.

Police investigating Quick's death said that they found no suspicious circumstances. Quick was a widower, according to his officers at Bolling

Girl Art Student Ends Life on 300-Foot Cliff

Laguna Beach, Calif., July 3 (A.P.). The body of Helen M. Weiser, Philadelphia art student, was found hanging from a tree reaching over a 300-foot precipice in Aliso Canyon today. She disappeared in her motor car last Friday.

Searchers who found the body said she apparently had tied an end of a scarf about a branch of the tree, another about her neck, and stepped into space. Police said they had been informed Miss Weiser was a member of a wealthy family.

Capital Today Celebrates Fourth With Big Program

Observance Will Culminate in Event at Sylvan Theater Tonight Following Full Day of Activities Including Parade of Veterans Seeking Bonus.

The soul of America will rise triumphantly again today, finding its reflection not only in this city and throughout the Nation, but in every corner of the globe as united homage is paid to the memory of the signing of the Declaration of Independence in Philadelphia 156 years ago.

Song and oratory, parade and flaring rocket, detonation of firecrackers will be heard and seen in every State and possession, in homes and hotels of far-off countries where Americans are gathered.

The ubiquitous spirit of the celebration will be permeated with a new fervor this year, as the hearts of all Americans have been filled with a new consciousness of their patriotism by the recent national conventions and by the coming elections. Interwoven with this is the prominent part the George Washington Bicentennial celebration will have in the Capital and throughout the land.

A mammoth program is planned in Washington. Starting with scattered ceremonies this morning and lasting throughout the day, the local celebration will culminate with a program of music and speechmaking tonight in the Sylvan Theater on the Washington Monument Grounds, to be climaxed with an elaborate display of fireworks.

Thousands of visitors were pouring into the city throughout yesterday, by airplane, motor, bus and train. Tonight's ceremony at the monument is expected to be witnessed by 200,000 persons. An unusual feature of the celebration here will be a parade by the bonus marchers at 10 o'clock this morning.

RAINEY DOUBTS VETO OF RELIEF BILL BY HOOVER

Declares Conferees Will Not Revise Measure if Disapproved.

BEER RIDER'S DEFEAT BY HOUSE PREDICTED

Impossibility of Repassing Aid Program Admitted; Funds Held Up.

(Associated Press.)

Hoping this really will be the "one week more" that persistently has prolonged Congress, Capitol leaders yesterday faced the possibility of a presidential veto of the $2,100,000,000 relief bill which again may make an adjournment date purely speculative.

Word passed among high administrative quarters on Capitol Hill that Mr. Hoover, conferring at his Rapidan camp over the week-end with Representative Snell, of New York, the Republican leader, would return unsigned the gigantic relief measure worked out by Senate and House conferees.

Also complicating the outlook was the prospective Senate tussle over prohibition with Senator Bingham (Republican), Connecticut, attempting to attach a beer-for-revenue amendment to the home loan bank bill. Bingham claims sufficient votes for its approval.

Will Not Rewrite Bill.

To talk of a relief veto, the conferees replied emphatically that the bill agreed upon would not be rewritten. As for the prohibition issue, Representative Rainey, of Illinois, the Democratic leader, said "there is not a bit of a chance for another House vote."

Rainey insisted, too, that the conferees, of whom he is one, believe Mr. Hoover will sign the Garner-Wagner relief bill.

"There is not the slightest chance of the bill being revised," he said in an interview yesterday. "We don't think he'll veto it."

The loan provisions under the Reconstruction Corporation, give preference to the self-liquidating projects the President favors, with other borrowers coming next.

Follows Hoover's Preference.

"I doubt the President will find any self-liquidating projects, myself, but the language follows his expressed preference.

"Then there is no bond issue. Some public works are retained, but in a lump sum, for expenditure as the President's interdepartmental board shall determine.

"He is not going to veto this bill."

But should the veto come, Rainey said he agreed with the previously expressed opinion of Speaker Garner—that a veto could not be overridden by a narrowly divided House, virtually half of whose members belong to the party that has just renominated Mr. Hoover for the Presidency.

Sees Beer Rider Doomed.

Asked whether the beer amendment would be considered by the House if attached by the Senate to the home loan bill, Rainey said:

"All Senate amendments will be considered, but the House won't agree to that. It already has been voted down twice."

With the fiscal year three days old, two appropriation bills still struggled for a place on the statute books—those for the Agriculture and War Departments. Speedy approval of the former is expected, but the War bill remains apparently hopelessly deadlocked over the House provision to eliminate 2,000 regular Army officers.

Pershing Joins July 4 Celebration in Paris

Paris, July 3 (A.P.).—Gen. John J. Pershing and numerous Franco-American personalities today attended the opening of Paris' celebration of America's Independence Day.

The celebration was marked by inauguration of the "Square of Yorktown," between the Place du Trocadero and the Rue Franklin. The latter long has been adorned by a statue of Benjamin Franklin.

DRY BOARD HITS STAND OF BOTH PARTIES ON RUM

Prohibition's Friends Are Urged to Fight All Wet Candidates.

PART OF REPUBLICAN PLANK IS APPROVED

Success of Law Is Cause of Propaganda Against It, Statement Says.

Chicago, July 3 (A.P.).—Irreconcilable prohibitionists, through their national board of strategy, today proclaimed war on both platforms and urged all friends of the eighteenth amendment to "devote their best efforts to the election of dry candidates to both houses of Congress and to State Legislatures."

The strategy board, in a formal statement issued after a long argument over its phraseology and whether it should be issued at all, said:

"We are opposed to repeal. We are opposed to the submission of any repeal or modification proposal which would destroy or weaken national prohibition. The prohibition forces of the Nation will, to the very limit of their ability, preserve, protect and defend that salutary governmental policy."

Declaring the results of the Republican and Democratic convention were "not such as to eliminate the prohibition issue from the 1932 campaign," the statement gave no advice to the drys as to how to vote in the presidential contest, but said the board at an early date would "recommend and publish the procedure and active steps to be taken in the conduct of the campaign."

Is Approved in Part.

The board approved portions of the Republican submission plank, but said the Democratic declaration would "eliminate the eighteenth amendment in its entirety from the Constitution and would open the floodgates to wholesale and uncontrollable violations of the law."

Opposition to the provision in both platforms for ratification of a new amendment by State conventions was expressed on the ground that this method was "untried, entirely unprotected by election laws and corrupt practices acts, and directly inviting all forms of jobbery and machine control."

The drys recognized that national prohibition "has not had the degree of observance and enforcement to which it is entitled," but said it has accomplished more and "has been far more successfully enforced than any other policy of liquor control which has ever been tried."

"Those who flout the Constitutionn and disobey the prohibition law," the statement continues, "will not obey the restrictions which would necessarily be a part of any regulatory law which might supercede the eighteenth amendment."

Full Text of Statement.

The full text of the board's proclamation follows:

"The results of the recent national political conventions were not such as to eliminate the prohibition issue from the 1932 campaign. Therefore, the board of strategy, created by the national conference of organizations

Resort Fishing Vessel Overturned; 10 Missing

Tillamook, Oreg., July 3 (U.P.).—Resort visitors bound on a deep-sea angling trip were plunged into the treacherous surf on Tillahook Bar today when the 43-foot launch Truxillo capsized. Four men and one girl of the fifteen persons aboard swam ashore or were picked up in the surf. Seven men and three women were missing.

A Coast Guard motor lifeboat rescued several, it was believed. It had been unable to return to the station due to the rough seas. The Truxillo, piloted by Bud York, attempted to avoid a towering wave. It was caught by a second wave and overturned.

9 Drown as Texas Rivers Flood Towns; Loss Heavy

San Antonio, Tex., July 3 (A.P.).—Flood waters bore death and destruction across a wide area of Southwest Texas tonight.

Boiling fanwise over inadequate river channels toward the Gulf of Mexico, the flood claimed nine lives and a heavy property toll in the area between San Antonio and the border town of Laredo.

Soldiers and policemen united in rescue work.

Heroism was general. Three persons died in attempts to save others. Military pilots flew over the lowlands to locate marooned families and drop messages of cheer.

Receding in the upper stretches of the Guadalupe, Nueces and Frio Rivers after rises which set a record for 40 years, the waters churned southward to threaten new damage to railroads, highways and homes.

The main line of the Missouri Pacific, connecting San Antonio and Laredo and Mexico, was cut by the Frio River between Pearsall and Dilley.

Ranchers lost goats, sheep and cattle by the score as the rivers, whipped

ROOSEVELT TO STRESS SECTIONAL PROBLEMS; FARLEY TO SEE SMITH

Drive Chief Hoping to End Row

AIMS TO GET CAMPAIGN AID

Work in New York For Nominee Is Wanted

Aboard Twentieth Century Limited, Toledo, Ohio, July 3 (A.P.).—Whether Alfred E. Smith will campaign for Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, the man whose nomination for the Presidency he was unable to block, will probably be determined at a conference James A. Farley, new chairman of the national committee, will hold with him this week.

Farley, returning to New York after managing Roosevelt's convention battle, asserted he expected to call upon former Gov. Smith this week with the avowed intention of "patching things up."

Expect Smith's Support.

Although he declined to say whether he would ask Smith to participate in the campaign, Farley said he had been a close friend of the 1928 presidential candidate for years and he expected to "have a long talk" with him. Roosevelt leaders expect Smith to support the nominee, but are doubtful whether he will take an active part in the campaign, particularly in New York.

Farley said he had no knowledge of Smith's reported intention to visit Europe during the campaign.

On Train With Raskob.

The new national chairman, who will direct the Roosevelt campaign strategy, declined to say whether he would continue to hold the offices of chairman of the New York boxing commission and the New York State committee. His political intimates indicated Farley intends holding the three positions.

By a coincidence, Farley and his predecessor, John J. Raskob, personal friend of Smith and director of his 1928 campaign, returned to New York on the same train.

Pinchot Silent on Rumor He Will Back Roosevelt

Harrisburg, Pa., July 3 (A.P.).—Gifford Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, tonight declined to answer the question uppermost in the minds of Pennsylvania's delegates to the Democratic national convention as they arrived home from Chicago.

Throughout the day, as their special train sped eastward through the State, the delegates speculated as to whether the governor—long a friend of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt—would bolt the Republican party and support the Democratic nominee for the Presidency.

Clew Is Still Lacking In St. Paul Kidnaping

St. Paul, Minn., July 3 (A.P.).—Whereabouts of Haskell Bohn, 20, son of a St. Paul manufacturer, missing since he was seized by two men here Thursday, were still a mystery tonight, at least so far as police were concerned.

Bohn, son of Gebhard Bohn, was forced into an automobile at the point of guns by the two men, who blindfolded the youth and drove away with him.

Garner Plans Meeting With Running Mate

(Associated Press.)

Speaker John N. Garner plans to confer with Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt within the next two weeks on Democratic campaign plans for 1932.

Just the exact date, Garner said yesterday, will depend on the adjournment of Congress, which the Speaker hopes will come this week.

"My job now is being Speaker of the House," the white-haired vice presidential nominee said. "That's plenty to keep me busy and must be finished before I can give any time to politics."

The Speaker was just leaving his office after a morning spent looking over some of the thousands of congratulatory messages from well-wish-

2 DRY STRATEGISTS CONFER WITH BORAH

Dr. Poling's Visit Follows Colvin's; Senator Silent on Third Party.

(Associated Press.)

The Senate's prohibition champion, Senator Borah, of Idaho, conferred yesterday with two strategists of the organized drys, and at one of the meetings, at least, the senator said there was no talk of a third party. About the other he was silent.

At separate times, D. Leigh Colvin, national chairman of the Prohibition party, and Dr. Daniel A. Poling, president of the Allied Prohibition Forces, visited the senator at his home.

"We simply talked over the political situation and the outlook both as to prohibition and as to economic questions," Borah said to newspapermen after his meeting with Poling. "No particular significance need be attached to the meeting.

"Dr. Poling and I are old-time friends. No third party proposal was considered."

Asked if a third party with him as its head was considered at the earlier conference with Colvin, the senator, who has already bolted the Republican liquor plank, smiled and replied:

"Well, I can't say anything about that. It is up to Mr. Colvin to say what was discussed."

Poling, who flew here from Chicago, declined to discuss at the present his meeting with Borah.

Portion of Bomb Found In New Capitol Building

Charleston, W. Va., July 3 (A.P.).—A time machine of the type designed to ignite explosives, was found in the main unit of West Virginia's new $10,000,000 capitol today. No explosives were located.

Capt. Harry A. Cooper, of the State police, believes the apparatus either was put in the building as a "threat" or that the persons who placed it intended to return with explosives later. The apparatus was discovered in the basement beneath the section of the main unit assigned to the State department of public safety.

Not to Make Rum Chief Issue

CAPITAL MAY BE HIS BASE

Will Start Active Campaign Work In 2 Weeks

Chicago, July 3 (A.P.).—Franklin D. Roosevelt has decided to base his campaign in each section of the country on the issues in which that section is most deeply interested.

The governor, resting here today from the airplane trip of yesterday and the strenuous round of activities that followed, made it clear after conferences with political advisers that he did not intend to concentrate upon either prohibition or economic issues, but would use the Democratic platform as a whole for his campaign document.

"I do not agree with some editors that there is one issue," the governor said. "The issues vary in importance; one that is important in one section of the country is of minor importance in another section."

Nominee Leaves for Home.

He boarded a train tonight for his native New York State, beaming under the plaudits of a thousand or more well wishers.

Although Gov. Roosevelt's car was placed on a siding in a remote section of the railroad yards, a crowd had surrounded it half an hour before his departure. The governor and Mrs. Roosevelt stood for several minutes on the rear platform, smiling and bowing to the crowd while newspaper photographers snapped flashlight pictures.

Gov. Roosevelt is scheduled to arrive in Albany, N. Y., at 3 p. m. (Eastern standard time) tomorrow.

Mr. Roosevelt said he would discuss everything in the Democratic platform during a series of short trips from Albany. He added he did not intend to be gone from the New York capital "too long at a time."

Farley to Speed Work.

James A. Farley, his campaign manager and new chairman of the national committee, also left immediately for New York to put the machine in order for the four months' election grind.

Both Gov. Roosevelt and Farley spent the morning conferring with party leaders from all sections and the campaign was swinging along tonight.

National headquarters probably will be established in New York, but this has not been definitely determined. Chicago and Washington also are under consideration.

Sectional offices are not planned just now. It is the belief of the Roosevelt leaders that each State may well be put in charge of its own campaign.

Advisory Groups Studied.

National advisory committees, however, are contemplated. Early announcement of these is expected. Roosevelt and Farley have given the word for an unceasing battle and each set the pace in the conference here. The governor did not get to bed until midnight last night, although he had indulged in one of the most strenuous days for a presidential nominee in recent history.

Within two weeks he will meet with campaign leaders to map out a plan

Britain to Offer Counter-Arms Plan, Paper States

Proposal, Reported to Be Superior to Hoover's Recommendations, Would Abolish Battleships Above 10,000 Tons, Heavy Guns, Bombing Planes.

London, July 3 (U.P.).—The belief that Great Britain will present counter-proposals to President Hoover's one-third arms reduction plan at Geneva was strengthened tonight by reports that the cabinet had instructed Foreign Secretary Sir John Simon to make an announcement early this week.

The Sunday dispatch said it understood Simon had been instructed to announce at Geneva, probably on Tuesday, a plan which was said to be superior to the American proposals.

It would provide for abolition of long range artillery and for all heavy land artillery, except such as fortresses, which are stationary.

Bombing airplanes would be scrapped, as provided in the American plans.

Britain also would propose the scrapping of battleships of more than 10,000 tons, the size of the so-called heavy cruisers. The naval question was one of most controversy in the American plan, Britain objecting to Mr. Hoover's suggestions because the method of cutting would handicap the naval forces. Britain has favored reduction of the tonnage of big ships rather than the number, while the United States wants to keep the large battleships of 25,000 tons or more.

The British plan also would provide for abolition of submarines or limiting them to 150 tons each, much smaller than the American plan suggested.

Aircraft carriers would be abolished, according to the dispatch's report of the plan, while all air forces would be cut 50 per cent.

The British suggestion also would provide for reduction of armies in Europe, and for prohibition of poison gas. Heavy tanks would be scrapped, but the so-called "whippet" tanks, below 20 tons, would be permitted.

DRYS WEIGH FUTURE AT INDIANA SESSION

Various Arid Factions Seek Way to Fight Wet Planks of Major Parties.

Indianapolis, July 3 (A.P.).—Prohibition proponents, aroused to action by the resubmission and repeal planks incorporated in the Republican and Democratic national platforms, converged upon this city today to consider their future strategy.

The Women's National Committee for Law Enforcement, interested in the preservation of the eighteenth amendment, held a rally this afternoon which was addressed by Bishop Edgar Blake, of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Meanwhile, delegates to the Prohibition party's national convention, which will convene here Tuesday, arrived for preliminary conferences. The interest of the delegates centered on the conference which D. Leigh Colvin, of New York, national chairman, has planned in Washington with United States Senator William E. Borah (Republican), of Idaho. The Idaho senator announced recently that he would not support President Hoover on the prohibition plank adopted by the Republican national convention.

Mrs. Henry W. Peabody, of Beverly, Mass., national chairman of the Women's National Committee on Law Enforcement, issued a statement today in which she disclaimed for the committee any political party adherence and disavowed any intention of organizing a third party movement. The committee, she said, is not connected with, nor under the direction of any group of men, nor any political party.

New Unity Party Nominates Today

Harvey and Coxey Among Candidates; Brookhart Asked to Speak.

Kansas City, Mo., July 3 (U.P.).—An effort to unite all third-party movements into one group, and present concerted opposition to both Republicans and Democrats, was launched here today.

Almost 250 delegates from seventeen States, representing seven political organizations, formed the "unity" party.

Their platform deals chiefly with monetary problems. They refer only indirectly to prohibition, pledging themselves to "retention and observance of the whole Constitution."

The convention will meet tomorrow to select a presidential nominee. Norman Thomas, Socialist; W. H. (Coin) Harvey, Arkansas economist; Gen. Jacob S. Coxey, Ohio's inveterate third-party leader, and Frank E. Webb, San Francisco, of the Farmer-Labor party, are leading candidates.

Coxey wired from his home in Massillon, Ohio, his willingness to head the unity ticket.

"The international bankers have held their two conventions, and the Republicans and Democrats have nominated their agents," Coxey said. "I feel it my duty to lead you."

The party's platform demands payment of the soldiers' bonus, Government banks operated only for service, Government ownership of public utilities, issuance of money by the Government to be placed in circulation at service costs only, with borrowers protected by national anti-usury laws.

The money planks follow closely the theories of Harvey to provide for inflation as a depression curative.

The convention made a bid for cooperation from Senator Smith W. Brookhart, of Iowa, and asked him to speak tomorrow. He has neither accepted nor declined.

Virgin Islanders Form Club to Back Roosevelt

St. Thomas, Virgin Islands, July 3 (U.P.).—Influential Virgin Islanders who have been at odds with the present Republican-appointed civilian administration today formed a Roosevelt-for-President Club.

They announced they would cable Gov. Roosevelt Monday requesting him to work for the interests of the islands and particularly for the return of naval control.

of procedure. "Sort of draw a blueprint," he called it.

"But the campaign won't be run on a blueprint method," he added with a laugh.

Mr. Roosevelt said he was "very much gratified" with the statement of Senator Norris, the Nebraska Independent Republican, who declared he would bolt the Hoover ticket and support Roosevelt. Norris left the Republicans in 1928 to support former Gov. Smith.

"You know Senator Norris is an old friend of mine," the governor remarked.

Roosevelt remained all day in his suite at the Congress Hotel, receiving an almost endless string of callers. Among them were William Gibbs McAdoo, Gov. Harry Woodring of Kansas, former Gov. Harry Flood Byrd of Virginia and his brother, Admiral Richard E. Byrd.

"Have you heard from Smith?" the governor was asked.

"No," he replied, glancing down at the end of his glowing cigarette. There was the same answer to an inquiry regarding Frank Hague, the New Jersey leader, one of the commanders in chief of the "Stop Roosevelt" movement in the convention.

One of the governor's first interests when he returns to Albany, he said, would be the employment of a staff of clerks and stenographers to answer telegrams and letters that came in after his nomination.

One of the first States to sound a call to rally behing the Roosevelt-Garner banner was Texas, the home State of Speaker Garner. Archie Price, State secretary of the Roosevelt organization, today called for a meeting of Texas Democrats in Waco on July 10 to make plans "for the victory in November."

3 Drowned in Lake Accident

Green Pond, N. J., July 3 (A.P.)—Two 3-year-old boys and a young servant girl were drowned in Green Pond Lake today when a sea sled on which they were riding overturned.

Three others were saved. The dead are Edward Cunard, jr., Lane Richards, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Richards, of Trenton, and Bertha Zepha, 15, Richards family employe.

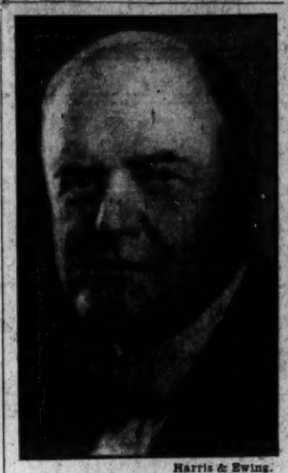
Bride's Services as Legal Adviser Highly Praised

Corporation Counsel's Job Thai of $50,000,000 Corporation.

By FRANK BUCKLEY.

The job of acting as legal advisor for a $50,000,000 corporation is no sinecure. William W. Bride, who rounded out his fifth year as corporation counsel of the District of Columbia, on July 1, will attest to that fact. No office in the District covers a wider range of legal activities, nor is concerned with problems of a more difficult or complex nature. The position is unique in the realm of governmental institutions in that its incumbent serves not one, but three masters. The attorney general of a State is responsible to his governor. A city solicitor, to his mayor.

Mr. Bride is vested with a responsibility that is threefold. As legal advisor to the District Commissioners, he renders annually several thousand formal and informal opinions upon a variety of matters arising from administration of the local municipality. In the same capacity he has the responsibility for prosecutions in both police and juvenile courts, before police and fire trial boards and for the conduct of other hearings almost without number. He sits as chairman of the police and fire retiring and relief board. His second role is that of general counsel for the Public Utilities Commission and with it goes the duty to prosecute cases of that body before courts of the District, as well as to render opinions it may desire in connection with its official acts. His third duty makes him a sort of quasi legal advisor for congressional committees and subcommittees concerned with proposed legislation for the District.



Harris & Ewing.

WILLIAM W. BRIDE.

Skillful in Legislation.

The large number of measures enacted during his regime that have benefited the muncipality can be attributed to his skill not only in framing legislation, but in pressing for its passage into law. One of such salutary laws, enacted as a result of his energetic espousal, authorizes the Commissioners to settle claims and suits against the District when the amount involved is not greater than $5,000 and the principle of law at issue has been decided by local tribunals.

This measure of itself is a contribution to residents of Washington that should stamp the Bride regime as a success, if nothing further had been accomplished. It served to free court dockets of hopeless congestion caused by accumulation of thousands of minor suits against the District, thus saving thousands of dollars in court expenses incidental to the trial of such causes. But it went even further, in that it afforded to litigants of the above class speedy, expeditious and inexpensive relief.

A subsequent amendment to the same law, also fathered and urged by Bride, vested the Commissioners with like authority in cases where the District is morally responsible for injuries suffered by reason of negligence of its employes, but has available a good legal defense to any suit that may be brought therefor. "It has always been my conviction," stated Mr. Bride after enactment of the latter amendment, "that a municipality should never, under any circumstances, take a legal advantage of a citizen.

"The doctrine of governmental function, available under the law, permits a procedure, which, if availed of, allows the municipality to terminate completely a suit that may have merit. I never want the District to win a law suit unless it is right. On that account I urged the Commissioners to indorse, and Congress to enact, a law giving the District authority to waive this doctrine in cases where the District is morally wrong. Such a law is now on the statute books, and under its provisions residents of the District having just claims against the local government are assured of their day in court."

Constitute Radical Departures.

Both of the above measures constitute radical departures from existing law in other jurisdictions. Both, however, are recognized as sensible, progressive steps in administration of modern municipalities.

Mr. Bride's five-year tenure of office has been characterized by a high type of unselfish devotion to the welfare of the District. His achievements are of the type that can be identified by definite, concrete accomplishments in the form of cold dollars and cents that have passed into the treasury of the local government by virtue of his legal acumen and tireless energy. Two months after his accession to office, he effected a settlement with the Pennsylvania Railroad which netted the District over $51,000.

Four months later he adjusted a controversy with the Washington Terminal Co. that enriched coffers of the local government by over $239,000. The railroad matter had been the basis of six-suits, two of which had been decided adversely to the District. The terminal dispute involved payment of taxes that had been outstanding for seventeen years. Predecessors in office had been unable to reconcile views maintained by the tax assesssor and the company. Bride was advised by well meaning friends to let the matter rest. "Let sleeping dogs lie," was the admonition. "Why start something you may not be able to finish!"

Some executives might have been disposed to accept this advice, especially in view of the failure of predecessors to dispose of the case. But not the Corporation Counsel. He viewed the unpaid taxes as a standing challenge to his office, to the District government and to the people of Washington. One of his first official acts was to call up the Terminal case and he went after the disputed taxes with all of the vigor and tenacity that has characterized his entire career as an attorney.

The firearms bill, now before Congress, and almost certain to become a law, was prepared by Mr. Bride. It is one of the most drastic measures of its type ever framed and will, if enacted, remedy a state of affairs that have been a serious hindrance to adequate law enforcement in the District. One has only to stroll along D street, between Fifth and Tenth, and glance into show windows of second-hand stores to observe the need for such a law. Most of these places with their heterogeneous displays of lethal weapons are nothing short of armories. Pistols of every caliber, shotguns, knives and blackjacks are on bold display, for anybody who possesses the necessary price.

Police authorities, without an adequate law, have been powerless to curb sales made in these stores. The proposed measure, so far as police authority is concerned, is just what the doctor ordered. Its various prohibitions make it exceedingly difficult for any but law-abiding citizens ot secure a firearm. All sales must be preceded by the fingerprinting of the purchaser and the submission of his application to the police. Penalties make unauthorized possession, possession of a firearm while in the act of committing a violent crime, and illicit sale, mighty unhealthy undertakings. One especially salutary provision prohibits the display of firearms in show windows, thus eliminating a spectacle that has made lower D street an eye-sore to decent citizens.

Fought Loan Sharks.

Back in 1930 he waged a successful campaign against loan sharks. This particular type of human parasite preys upon persons in straitened financial circumstances, without credit, and desperately in need of ready money. Persons in such a state will pay almost any rate of interest and trust the loan shark to boost it to the limit. All manner of small loan enterprises were on tap in the fall of 1930.

Victims of various financial misfortunes provided a flourishing business for automobile sharks, personal loan manipulators and clandestine pawn brokers. So far as interest rates were concerned the sky was the limit. That is, until Corporation Counsel Bride stepped into the picture. A careful investigation disclosed wholesale violations of the small-loans law and he set about the business of cleaning up. Every operator suspected of sharp practices was brought to his office, questioned thoroughly and sent on his way with a sharp warning. A dozen or so wer. arrested, tried in the Police Court, convicted and fined $100. Whereas, in 1931 there were more than 100 known loan sharks in business, a recent check-up disclosed the fact that not more than a dozen are now on the job.

Most of the larger cities have experienced difficulty with the employment agency racket since the advent of financial stress. Victims of this cruel enterprise are unfortunates, out-of-work, discouraged and ready to grasp at the proverbial straw. Agency promoters hold forth the straw in the form of a promised job, collect $2 for the "registration fee," pocket the money and promptly forget all about the luckless victim. Several of these dishonest job promoters cropped up in Washington during the fall of 1931 and prospered for a short period.

Clients Wouldn't Squawk.

Most of the "clients" were humble folk who could be counted upon as not likely to squawk when the coveted job was not forthcoming. Several of the number did, however, lodge a complaint with the Corporation Counsel, who immediately started an investigation that resulted in the arrest of some fifteen of the agency proprietors. Bride recognized the fact that the nominal fine available in such cases, would hardly be a deterrent to further activities along the same lines, and hauled several of the number before the District Commissioners for revocation of their permits to operate. This latter procedure placed a quietus on further job racketeering in the District.

District taxpayers have Bride to thank for the "elect to forfeit law" available in cases involving minor traffic violations. Prior to 1930, a parking ticket meant a trip to the Police Station, the posting of collateral, and the docketing the case for trial in Traffic Court. The violator might not appear when the case was called, and could forfeit the collateral, but the police officers involved had to be on hand and the case had to be called up. This system served to clog court dockets, kept officers needlessly occupied away from their spheres of duty and meant a large amount of expense to the District government.

Mr. Bride set about to remedy the situation and devised the "elect to forfeit" scheme whereby a violator may elect, at the police station, whether or not to forfeit collateral or to stand trial. Most persons gladly pay the forfeit and thus the court is freed of thousands of petty cases, more police officers are available for duty and District taxpayers gain by elimination of the expenses that would otherwise result.

DRY PARTY LEADER AND BORAH CONFER

nomination before the prohibition party's convention, opening in Indianapolis today. After the meeting, he returned there immediately.

Borah's name has been put forward as a third party leader time after time during his long political experience. Always he has refused to head such a ticket, and his friends believe this year will be no exception.

They were certain Colvin took this word back to his party's convention.

This belief was strengthened by the tone of the Chicago proclamation of the national board of strategy of prohibition organizations, urging all friends of the eighteenth amendment to "devote their best efforts to the election of dry candidates to both houses of Congress and to state legislatures."

In some quarters it was believed Borah's campaign activities, if any, would be limited to taking the stump in behalf of congressional candidates sympathetic with his dry law views.

For himself, the Idahoan declined any comment, though he admitted readily the obvious subject of his discussion with Colvin—prohibition.

Borah long has been on record as regarding the economic issues as overshadowing prohibition issues, and therefore the more natural foundation for a third party.

BAY STATE IS URGED TO BACK ROOSEVELT

Hoped Smith Would Win, but Will Plead Ticket, Says David I. Walsh.

Chicago, July 3 (A.P.).—Senator David I. Walsh, of Massachusetts, a State that clung stanchly to Alfred E. Smith in the fight over the presidential nomination, issued a statement tonight calling upon the Massachusetts Democrats to support Franklin D. Roosevelt.

"I had earnestly hoped that Alfred E. Smith, courageous leader of our party in 1928, might be chosen to lead us to the Democratic victory which is ahead," he said.

"Had the Chicago convention nominated him, he would have been the next President of the United States and a great President—the man of all men the country stands most in need of in this critical hour.

"It is a grievous disappointment to the Democracy of Massachusetts and to Al Smith's devoted followers everywhere that the fates have decreed otherwise, and that the majority of the delegates in this convention were committed to another candidate.

"Gov. Roosevelt is now the nominee of our party. He has subscribed unreservedly to a party platform, which is clear and explicit and in the main an enunciation of the principles for which Al Smith and those who stand with him have consistently fought.

"Most of all we have cause for rejoicing that the Democratic party at this convention has at last given its unqualified pledge to repeal of the eighteenth amendment and pending repeal, to liberalize the Volstead act.

"That declaration is a landmark in our party history. It is an epoch-making decision, which in importnace and effect far transcends any questions of men and of candidates.

"The Democratic party is my party because its principles of government are my principles. My influence will be fully exerted to assure a Democratic victory in the coming election."

Ritchie, Back at Home, To Work for Roosevelt

Baltimore, July 3 (A.P.).—Gov. Albert C. Ritchie came back to Maryland today on his special train from the Democratic national convention at Chicago, and told several thousand people who greeted him here: "I'm going to take off my coat and work for the election of Franklin D. Roosevelt."

The governor's special train reached Baltimore this afternoon at 3:45 (E. S. T.), included in the throng that met the homecoming executive were State and municipal officials. Standing on the platform of the train, the goverpor said the prohibition repeal plank in the Democratic platform was drafted in the office of Mayor Howard W. Jackson in Baltimore's city hall.

Garner's Elderly Mother Jubilant

"He Deserves All That's Coming to Him," She Declares.

Detroit, Tex., July 3 (A.P.).—Pride in the achievements of John N. Garner was voiced by his elderly mother, Mrs. Sarah Garner, at the old family homestead here today. Recovering from a two-weeks' illness, she was jubilant when she heard of his nomination for the Vice Presidency over a radio in the big white home.

"Well," she exclaimed, "I'm glad that part's over." The mother said she did not expect, in the event of her son's election, to attend the inauguration ceremonies in Washington. She regarded the distance as too great.

"But I do wish I could see my boy, John," she said. "I don't say it because he's my boy, but he's been a good boy and a good man and he deserves all that's coming to him." Two brothers and two sisters of the Speaker of the House of Representatives live here. They are Jess L. and Jolly Garner, Mrs. J. R. Wright and Mrs. Maud Blair. The Speaker's brothers are farmers.

Walker Leaves Chicago; Silent on Parley's Pick

Chicago, July 3 (A.P.).—Mayor James Walker of New York left today without making any statement with regard to the presidential nomination of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, with whom are filed charges asking Walker's removal from office.

Store Robbed of $90 in Goods.

About $90 worth of merchandise was reported stolen early yesterday from a grocery at 50 N street southeast, by Louis Shapiro, proprietor. The intruders, he said, gained entrance by forcing a transom. Meats, cigarettes and a revolver were taken.

SMITH BACK HOME; STILL KEEPS SILENT

Trying to "Forget Politics for a While," He Says as Crowd Welcomes Him.

New York, July 3 (A.P.).—Alfred E. Smith came back home today, relaxed a bit and said he was going to "forget politics for a while."

He displayed a fleeting smile and raised his straw hat once in response to the applause of an early morning crowd which met his train.

"It's cool here, isn't it?" remarked one of the members of the Smith party as a breeze drifted through the Smith automobile.

"Yes, after Chicago," Smith chuckled.

The "happy warrior" of 1928 continued, however, to maintain a strict silence on the nomination of his former ally, Gov. Roosevelt, or the forthcoming campaign.

He made it clear as his train neared New York that he had no intention of issuing any statement soon. His main desire, he said, was to get some rest. It was understood he still had under consideration a proposed European trip.

"I have absolutely nothing to say for publication," said Smith. "I am tired out. I want to get home. I don't know when I will have any statement."

Then he, Mrs. Smith and several close friends were driven to church. From there they went to the home of the former governor's son, Arthur, at Far Rockaway, Long Island, where they will spend the holiday.

Tuesday morning Smith will slip back into his role of a busy man when he returns to his skyscraper office.

Samuel Seabury, counsel of the Hofstadter legislative committee, who had been a spectator at the convention, returned on another section of the train.

"Very interesting," was Seabury's only comment of the nomination of the man to whom he submitted data against Mayor Walker.

Delegates Leaving Chicago for Homes

City Now Virtually Deserted and Souvenir Sellers Without Buyers.

Chicago, July 3 (A.P.).—Chicago tonight was just a city where two national conventions were held. Virtually all the visiting Democrats were on their way home and the others will leave tomorrow.

With the exodus went the souvenir sellers who have been shouting their wares on the street corners for three weeks. The men who sold dollar beach balls for a quarter no longer offer this attractive bargain and the walking stick salesmen have followed them into limbo. Balls and canes were the most popular street sales and no one ever will know how many of the delegates took the walking sticks home with them.

There was no day-time rain during the convention but with the last political parley over, a drizzling, weeping rain set in today. This seemd fair enough, for the convention visitors did well by Chicago and the city was sorry to see them go.

Al Melgard, who plays the big pipe organ at the stadium, deserves the rest he'll surely get now. No one connected with either the Republican or Democratic convention worked harder than the musician high above the political battle front. When the Democrats remained in session all night and adjourned long after daybreak, Al was still there to send them to bed with a booming "good night" from his resounding pipes.

Dr. Elias Sanford, Churchman Dead

Was Honorary Secretary of Federal Church Council; Dies at 89.

Middlefield, Conn., July 3 (A.P.).—The Rev. Dr. Elias Benjamin Sanford, honorary secretary of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America and one of its founders, died today in his home. He was 89 years old.

In 1895 he was instrumental in organizing the Open and Intsitutional Church League, of which he was elected secretary. Five years later he was active in the group of clergymen who organized the National Federation of Churches, and in 1905 was one of the leaders at the interchurch council which instituted the Fedgral Council of Churches of Christ. He was elected corresponding secertary, a position he held until 1912, when he retired because of ill health and became honorary secretary.

He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Ashley K. Hardy, of Hanover, N. H., and Miss Mary T. Sanford, of Middlefield. Funeral services will be held Tuesday. Burial will be in Thomaston.

Losers Deserted in Rush To Get Bandwagon Seat

By JOHN J. DALY

A POLITICAL headquarters that for days had swarmed with autograph hunters became a bare hotel suite again when it was announced that another candidate had won the nomination.

Posters, literature, and campaign buttons were thrown away, trampled on, and the candidate's picture turned toward the wall, as his former worshipers sought another shrine, shrine.

Sic transit gloria mundi. So goes the glory of the Monday before the first Tuesday in November.

"You're a good man while you've got it, or going to get it, but once they take away the laurel wreath it's 'Good Night, Eddie!'"

All the world loves a lover, and all the world loves a winner. All the world loves to ride on the bandwagon, and all the world loves to turn the cold shoulder to the stalwart, however brave, who loses out.

* * * *

So now, on the glorious Fourth of July, in celebration of independence, fought for and won by faithful forefathers, the free men of America forsake the losing cause, as their daddies and their granddaddies did before them, and gather round the platforms where the victors stand.

In a little while now, after the first fireworks, the real shouting and the campaigning will begin as the camp divides itself, some getting behind the banner of Hoover and Curtis and others throwing red, red roses in the pathway of Roosevelt and Garner, gathering rosebuds while they may.

It is the greatest show on earth, and there is nothing like it in this wide, wide world—the quadrennial campaign that makes America the Land of the Free and the Home of the Brave.

Two victorious warriors emerge from the national conventions. They will go to the arena in November, like knights of old, there to decide the supremacy of one party or the other.

After that, when the votes are cast and counted, to the victor belongs the spoils and to the loser the quiet road that leads back to the woods.

It is the spirit of America and the way of the world.

Roosevelt Started Career In Public Affairs at 28

Has Kept in Close Touch With Men and Events of Politics Ever Since; Loves Outdoors, Being Active in Swimming, Riding and Driving.

Albany, N. Y., July 3 (A.P.).—Twenty-two years ago, Franklin Delano Roosevelt, the Democratic presidential nominee, then an active young man of 28, was preparing to stump his home county for a place in the New York State Senate.

John E. Mack—the same Mack that nominated him at Chicago—at that time the Democratic party leader of Dutchess County, had induced the towering son of James Roosevelt, wealthy landowner and railroad executive, to run for an office that traditionally had belonged to Republicans.

Mack shrewdly guessed the enthusiasm of Jim Roosevelt's boy could be used to advantage in arousing the interest of the countryside. Franklin, inspired by the public life of his cousin, the illustrious "T. R.," saw public service as a glamorous opportunity for a youth whose chief interest in college had been history and political economy. Mack had no trouble in selling politics to young Roosevelt.

Roosevelt flew about picturesque Dutchess County in a new contrivance of that day—the automobile—and when the ballots were counted in November he was a State senator. He tasted then the fruits of success at the polls.

Since 1910 Roosevelt never has been out of the public eye, although for four years he was on the sidelines, blanketed by an attack of infantile paralysis. Except for a few months when he was fighting to live, the Democratic nominee has always been in touch with men and affairs of politics.

Planting his feet in many of the steps that Theodore followed to the White House, Franklin advanced to the national stage. Like "T. R.," he was an Assistant Secretary of the Navy, a vice presidential candidate and Governor of New York. He married the former President's niece, Anna Eleanor Roosevelt. She is Franklin's sixth cousin. "T. R." was a fifth cousin.

The Democratic hope is well over 6 feet in height and exercises to keep his weight below 190 pounds. His face is long with many of the typical Roosevelt characteristics. His smile is like that of Theodore. The Roosevelt eyes are blue, deep set and his nose is the long inquisitive kind—an index that is a definite key to the New York Governor's character. He is persistently inquisitive and the visitor with a fund of knowledge that Mr. Roosevelt does not possess is in for a busy time of answering questions.

Roosevelt is a voluble talker and a conversationalist who punctuates his remarks with shakes of the head and hands, a beetling of the brows and frequent smiles and laughter.

Before infantile paralysis robbed him of the full use of his legs, Roosevelt was an outdoor enthusiast, a horseman, yachtsman, and golf player and a robust participant in all athletics. He still rides, drives an automobile and swims.

The woods and rolling hills of his native Dutchess County were a lure to the boy; they are the man's most beloved locale. He is never happier than when driving through that countryside or picnicking beside the majestic Hudson sweeping seaward.

The governor is a stamp collector of importance and his collection of books and prints on the American Navy is probably the best in existence. In his New York City home are the toy ships which the Navy's War Planning Board used during the World War.

Mr. Roosevelt, when time permitted, was fond of poker. He was the kind that raised before the draw and testimonials to his prowess are two straight flush hands tacked on the wall of an exclusive club near Washington. Only five others, held throughout the years, also are on the walls.

He calls his wife "The Missus" and she refers to him as "Franklin." Their five children call them "mother" and "father" and sometimes "Ma" and "Pa."

PLATFORMS OF BOTH PARTIES ARE ATTACKED BY DRY BOARD

supporting the eighteenth amendment, including in its membership officers and leaders of the national temperance organizations and general church denominational temperance boards, in the interest of the retention of the eighteenth amendment and the defense of the Constitution against the lawless liquor attacks, offers to the people its evaluation of the platforms adopted by the conventions.

"We are opposed to repeal. We are opposed to the submission of any repeal or modification proposal which would destroy or weaken national prohibition. The prohibition forces of the Nation will, to the very limit of their ability, preserve, protect and defend that salutary governmental policy.

Records Are Cited.

"Proof of the benefits of the eighteenth amendment is evidenced by unimpeachable testimony from governmental records, social welfare agencies and other authoritative sources. Those benefits are in proportion to the extent of observance and the degree of enforcement.

"While we recognize the fact that national prohibition has not had the degree of observance and enforcement to which it is entitled, we are, nevertheless, convinced that this national policy of government has accomplished more and has been far more successfully enforced than any other policy of liquor control which has ever been tried.

"Experience has demonstrated that any other method for the mitigation of the evils of the liquor traffic would unquestionably foster greater evils and create more formidable difficulties of administration and enforcement than those with which the Government has been compelled to deal under the eighteenth amendment.

"The violation of the prohibition law and the evils attendant thereon, by no process of reason or logic, can be properly chargeable to the law. Such evils are the natural product of the nefarious traffic which in all its long history has scoffed at law and defied Government. No Federal or State regulatory law has ever received from the liquor traffic willing respect or observance. That traffic is inherently lawless and has always challenged popular government.

Calls Law a Success.

"The very success of the law today is primarily responsible for the highly organized and heavily financed propaganda against it. Those who flout the Constitution and disobey the prohibition law will not obey the restrictions which would necessarily be a part of any regulatory law which might supersede the eighteenth amendment.

The Republican Plank.

"The platform plank on the eighteenth amendment adopted by the Republican party convention declares for obedience to and enforcement of the law and the preservation of gains admittedly accomplished under the eighteenth amendment. It declares against nullification, nonobservance, referendums without constitutional sanction, the submission of a mere repeal amendment, and any 'backward step.' The plank declares that prohibition has been and is a nonpartisan question. It does not pledge nominees or members of the party to follow any specific course, declares against the 'evils inherent in the liquor traffic,' and pledges the party and its nominees to enforcement.

"With that portion of the plank we heartily agree.

"The plank further declares that Congress should submit a substitute amendment which would give the people an opportunity to decide whether they will retain the eighteenth amendment unchanged or adopt a substitute permitting the several States to legalize the sale of intoxicants as their citizens may determine, subject to the power of the Federal Government to protect those States where prohibition exists and to safeguard citizens everywhere from the return of the saloon and its attendant evils.

"To this portion of the plank we are opposed, as we are to the submission of any repeal or weakening modification of the amendment. This plank, however, does not declare any party preference as between the eighteenth amendment and the substitute proposed, but leaves that to be determined by the people in the event Congress submits such a proposal.

"The Republican platform neither pledges the party power nor binds the members of the Congress to vote for any such submission. Lest its general utterances calling for party loyalty be taken to extend to the imposition of a duty to vote to submit, the declaration on the eighteenth amendment gives specific release by the direct statement that 'no public official or member of the party should be pledged or forced to choose between his party affiliations and his honest convictions upon this question.'

"The Democratic plank:

"The platform plank adopted by the Democratic party convention declares specifically for the repeal of the eighteenth amendment, and demands that Congress propose such repeal to ratification conventions in the States. It urges the party, in case the eighteenth amendment is repealed, to cooperate in the enactment of State measures to prevent the return of the saloon, and demands that the Federal Government protect the States against importation of liquors in violation of State laws. It also declares for the immediate modification of the Volstead act to legalize beer and other alcoholic beverages permissible under the Constitution, for beverage purposes.

Would Open Floodgates.

"This plank would eliminate the eighteenth amendment in its entirety from the Constitution and would open the floodgates to wholesale and uncontrollable violations of the law.

"Both platforms provide for ratification by State conventions. We oppose the convention method for ratification of constitutional amendments as untried, entirely unprotected by election laws and corrupt practices acts, and directly inviting all forms of jobbery and machine control.

"In this emergency we urge the friends of the eighteenth amendment to unity of effort and against ill-advised and ineffective political movements tending to waste their energies and resources, dividing and diverting them into channels that would serve only the enemies of our cause.

"We urge all friends of the eighteenth amendment to devote their best efforts to the election of dry candidates to both houses of Congress and to the State Legislatures.

"The board of strategy at an early date will recommend and publish the procedure and active steps to be taken in the conduct of the campaign."

HARLAN COUNTY BAD MAN SHOT TO DEATH

other men disappeared in the woods and the deputies went back to organize a posse.

Randolph at one time joined the police force to rid the city of a bunch of toughs. While doing so he killed two men, one of them in the Harlan City Hall. Randolph contended that the other man fired first.

He was known as an expert shot and was said to be quick on the draw. During the recent labor troubles he killed John Chastee, at Cawood, a mining camp near here. He contended that Chasteen also fired first.

The cause of the trouble between him and Middleton is not known. Sheriff Blair has refused to make a statement.

A short while before this shooting, Ollie Holmes, 26, was shot and killed, allegedly by Lawrence Boggs, when the two met near the home of Holmes, about three miles northeast of Harlan. Holmes was under indictment for the murder four months ago of Clarence Johnson, who was at first reported to have done the shooting this afternoon. Boggs is being sought by officers.

Couple Wed 62 Years Seeks Divorce.

Enid, Okla., July 3 (A.P.)— After living together nearly 62 years and rearing eight children, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Herron have filed application for divorce, declaring they can no longer agree. They married in Howell County, Missouri, in 1870.

WIFE OF ROOSEVELT HOLDS TASK SOLEMN

Will Abolish Outworn Social Traditions if Husand Is Elected.

Chicago, July 3 (A.P.).—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt today consigned outworn social tradition to the limbo her husband created for a fiction of politics.

Somebody asked the niece of "T. R." 28 years married to her distant cousin, the Democratic nominee, whether the drawing room duties of the First Ladyship would absorb her completely if laid upon her next March.

"I can't imagine it," she replied. "I've watched a good many."

Then she candidly continued:

"There are some several traditions which are good, but there are others * * * well, tradition ought to be kept while it means something, but otherwise, why keep it?"

Views on Position.

She views her position as a candidate's wife, like carrying the party standard "at a time like this," as "a solemn performance."

Tall and slender, with the etched Roosevelt features and a strikingly alert blue eye, she wore a black silk suit with a fine gray diamond design, a blue-and-white blouse, and a simple hat. Her smile was wide and somewhat rare. Her face was innocent of any aid to beauty.

She was asked whether she was "superlatively" happy at her husband's nomination.

To Continue Charities.

"I'm one of the calm people of this earth," she replied. "Everybody's asked whether this is exciting, but in that they've missed something: While it's a tremendous thing, the responsibility, the tremendous thing you have to do even in taking up a campaign at a time of this kind makes it of necessity a rather solemn performance."

Mrs. Roosevelt will continue to teach school three days a week, next winter, in a private girls' school which is one of her pet projects. She will continue a furniture factory she established to provide work for the unemployed of the environs of their country estate.

"Of course" she'll go wherever the governor goes this summer, and write pieces for magazines and read.

GARNER TO FINISH TASK AS SPEAKER

ers all over the world. Although he still declined public comment on party actions, and expects to continue this silence until formally notified, it was no secret that he was highly pleased, both with Roosevelt's unprecedented flight to receive the nomination from the Chicago convention and the text of his speech to the Democratic hosts there.

Undecided on Notification.

Garner is undecided whether his own notification ceremonies will be held at his Texas home or here.

Meanwhile, the Speaker made known that he has no present intention of withdrawing his application filed several weeks ago for reelection from his Texas congressional district. The primary is late this month.

"I have always polled 5,000 or 6,000 Republican votes," he said. "Those fellows want me to withdraw so they can send somebody up here."

This statement allayed partly until the November results are known further discussion of who might succeed Garner as head of the House Democrats. There is no obstacle in Texas or Federal laws that could prevent his name from being on both the national and congressional tickets there.

Not Yet Opposed.

Garner said that to date no opposition candidate has filed in his district against him.

When the Speaker left his office, he said that, after lunch he would take a nap and then walk through the zoo, one of his favorite jaunts.

Mrs. Garner remained behind at the office with the Speaker's other secretaries.

"There are so many of these telegrams that I must answer myself," she explained.

Asked whether she will continue as her husband's secretary should he be elected Vice President, Mrs. Garner said:

"I hope to be Mr. Garner's helpmate to the end. But circumstances may alter the situation and I will meet those as they arise."

At present, Mrs. Garner handles the Speaker's district correspondence. This work, of course, would be eliminated if the Texan presides over the Senate.

Late in the day Gov. O. Max Gardner of North Carolina and Representative Warren (Democrat), North Carolina, reached Washington from Chicago and immediately called Speaker Garner.

Gardner and Warren conferred with the vice presidential nominee for more than an hour. The North Carolina Governor has just been elected national committeeman for his State.

Neither had any statement concerning the conference but both expressed satisfaction and confidence regarding the Democratic ticket.

FLOOD OF WET BILLS HELD UNIMPORTANT

Bingham Claims 51 Votes, but Leaders Doubt Congress Will Act.

By J. B. M'DONNELL.

The cries and fury over wet measures introduced in Congress since adoption of the prohibition planks of the Republican and Democratic parties is, in the opinion of responsible congressional leaders, destined to be nothing more than a minor fuss and fury in the fag-end of a session of Congress rapidly drawing to an end.

Many Optimistic Wets.

Millions of persons throughout the land apparently have jumped to the conclusion that the resubmission plank adopted by the Republican convention and the repeal plank adopted by the Democratic convention have written the end of the eighteenth amendment and its supporting laws, if letters and other communications received from constituents by members of the House and Senate are to be accepted as representative. That is far from the case.

Congress may, of course, upset its leaders and do what it wants about the matter even to the extent of repealing the Volstead law, but even the most optimistic wets in Congress have no hope of achieving that and leaders on both sides say the wets will get no place this session even with their proposals to modify the Volstead law.

The beer proposal advanced by Senator Hiram Bingham (Republican), of Connecticut, seems to afford the wets their best chance for another vote on prohibition, but even it is a slim hope.

The Chicago convention undoubtedly will find a reflection in the present Congress. But in this session the Congress already has gone on record on more than one occasion on the question of prohibition and there is no indication that the Chicago flood has engulfed Congress as yet.

Bingham Claims 51 Votes.

If the Senate approves the Bingham amendment, of course, the House will have to have another vote on the subject. Senator Bingham incidentally said he has the support of 51 senators pledged to his proposal.

To get his proposal to a vote in the House Senator Bingham announced his purpose to offer it as an amendment to the home loan bank bill. It is almost certain that some one, for one reason or another, will raise a point of order against the amendment and the point may be sustained. That would end that for the time being at least.

Representative Henry T. Rainey (Democrat), of Illinois, leader of his party in the House, said yesterday that he saw "not the slightest chance" of enactment at this session of legislation modifying the liquor laws.

House leaders are not willing that the liquor question should be raised again in the House at this late day and they believe they are backed up by a majority of the House membership.

None of the delegations was delayed more than 45 minutes, railroad officials stated. All are expected to reach their homes about on schedule. No one was injured in the wreck, cause for which was not known.

TRUCE LOOMS AS AIR FORCES QUIT CANTON

30 Fliers Not to Take Part in Further Civil Wars; Navy Involved.

Hongkong, China, July 3 (A.P.).—Desertion of most of the Cantonese air force brought hope today of a truce in Canton's civil strife, involving the rebellious navy of Admiral Chan Chak.

The air force, under Gen. Chan Chai-Tong, which has been operating against the rebels, was crippled by the desertion of 30 fliers, including many American-trained aviators and representing 80 per cent of the total air strength.

The fliers refused to take part in further attacks upon Hainan, seat of Admiral Chan's separatist naval administration. They declared adherence to the recent statement of their former leader, Chang Wai-Cheung, that the air force would not be available for future civil wars.

This defection raised hopes of a peace agreement for which Sun Fo, a former Cantonese leader now in the Nanking government, and Gen. Tsai Ting-Kai, leader of the Chinese armies during the heavy fighting against the Japanese at Shanghai last winter, have been working.

The gallant young Gen. Tsai received an enthusiastic welcome at Canton, leading to suggestions that the Cantonese navy and air force, as a compromise, might go to Amoy and join Gen. Tsai's Nineteenth army.

GOVERNMENT PARTY LEADING IN MEXICO

Three Hurt in Clash, but Nation Is Mostly Quiet; Protest Is Filed.

Mexico City, July 3 (A.P.).—Early returns from today's congressional elections indicated the National Revolutionary party, unopposed in most districts, had won overwhelmingly.

Voters in the main were apathetic, although three members of the Revolutionary party were slightly hurt in a clash with Labor party adherents here. Reports elsewhere indicated the country on the whole was quiet.

The Labor party tonight sent protests to the interior and federal district departments against what it called scandalous violations of the law and charged that many voters were not allowed to cast their votes.

The Labor party was the only one to oppose the dominant National Revolutionary party in the federal district, putting up a complete ticket for the one senator and twelve deputies to be elected.

The Revolutionary party tonight said it won overwhelmingly in ten of the twelve congressional districts where 100,000 Revolutionary votes were cast to 5,000 Labor votes. The other two districts were unreported at that time, it was said.

Ortiz Rubio's Choices Rejected.

Mexico City, July 3 (A.P.).—It was announced tonight that the Senate committee on foreign relations had refused to ratify President Ortiz Rubio's selection of Alfonso Castellot as Minister to France and Col. Ignacio de la Mora as Mexican consul general to Detroit. The charge was that they were not true Mexican revolutionaries. It was said that Castellot is a reactionary and that De la Mora sided with De la Huerta in the 1924 revolution.

Mexican Strike Looms.

Mexico City, July 3 (A.P.).—Javier Sanchez Mejorada, president of the National Railways of Mexico, tonight said there was a strong possibility a strike would be called on the National lines late this month or early in August. He said the railway was attempting to avert a situation that would tie up most of the railway mileage in Mexico, but that the situation was uncertain.

The ashes fell north of Valparaiso and south of Talca.

HOOVER PREPARING ACCEPTANCE SPEECH

Reads Roosevelt's Talk in Newspaper at Rapidan Mountain Camp.

Luray, Va., July 3 (A.P.).—With his political and governmental advisers around him, President Hoover today divided his time between working and resting for the strenuous week to come.

Arriving at his retreat at the headwaters of the Rapidan River late yesterday, Mr. Hoover was too late to hear the address of his November opponent—Franklin D. Roosevelt—over the radio. Today, however, a Marine airplane flew over the camp and dropped a bundle of newspapers and mail for the President. He read with interest Roosevelt's acceptance speech before the Democratic national convention at Chicago.

Indications were given that the President was working on his own acceptance speech. The time of his return to the Capital was indefinite, but it was reported from Rapidan that he might return late tomorrow. There was a possibility that he would wait until Tuesday morning.

Mr. Hoover plans a quiet Fourth of July without any public appearances. He has with him Secretaries Hyde and Hurley and Representative Snell, of New York, Republican national convention chairman.

They agreed the mess at least had improved over half a century.

Man Slain as Fires Are Set in Factory

Foreman of Plant Also Is Dying as Mad Worker Takes Revenge.

New York, July 3 (A.P.).—Responding to a fire alarm in a Bronx macaroni factory today, firemen and police found one man dead, shot through the head, the factory foreman dying of knife wounds, and five fires ablaze in the building. Police said it was the revenge scheme of a disgruntled workman.

Automatic sprinklers in the plant had set off the alarm before the flames had gained much headway, and the fires were quickly extinguished. A note, scribbled in Italian, was found on the dead man, Mario Piras, a former employe officials refused to rehire after a strike he was said to have organized.

"There is no accomplices," it said. "But I want to take revenge for the false promises."

IRELAND MAY AGREE TODAY TO ARBITRATE

Note Due in London on Land Annuities Hinted as Way Out of Deadlock.

London, July 3 (A.P.).—A note from the Irish Free State dealing with land annuities will be handed to the British government tomorrow, and rumor had it the document would agree to arbitration of the vexatious question.

Unless it does, J. H. Thomas, secretary for dominions, will go before the House of Commons with a plan to collect an equivalent of the land annuities in tariffs on Irish Free State goods, a move regarded in some quarters as meaning a tariff war.

But rumors were that President Eamon de Valera will intimate acceptance of the principle of arbitration by an empire tribunal on the question of whether the Free State shall pay £3,0000,000 annually to the British exchequer.

Unless the British government has changed its attitude in the last few days this course would be acceptable since it agreed to empire arbitration in a recent conference with President De Valera. The Free State leader, however, insisted on international arbitration which would not limit a board of examiners to empire participants.

Therefore, when the Free State defaulted in its six-months' installment of annuities, the British government announced it would introduce a bill in Parliament tomorrow to collect these annuities over a tariff wall, a step which led to a suggestion that there would occur a tariff war unless the matter was settled immediately.

Although the special measure for tariffs was scheduled to come up in the House this week, it was generally agreed both here and in Ireland that the government will hold off if any hope of arbitration remained.

2 Veterans Held For Selling Food

Nonmembers of B. E. F. Seized for Allegedly Peddling Gifts.

The hunger pangs of the bonus marchers are a fruitful source of contributions from merchants and housewives. Two men stand accused of begging food for the bonus army, then selling it for profit.

Patrolman F. S. Marshall arrested them yesterday after he charges they solicited cakes from sympathetic housewives and then peddled them.

They are charged with investigation. They gave their names as Calvin C. Dunbar, 42 years old, of 1135 Sixth street northwest, and Henry R. Schilling, 40 years old, of 1354 Girard street northwest. Both are veterans, police said, but are not connected with the army.

LEAD OF REYNOLDS MOUNTS TO 100,000

Dry Law and Antimachine Sentiment Big Factors in Morrison's Defeat.

Raleigh, N. C., July 3 (U.P.).—Riding on the wave of a wet landslide, a new star entered the political firmament today in the person of young Robert Rice Reynolds, Asheville attorney, self-styled "Our Bob" and "the people's man," who won the Democratic nomination for United States senator from white-haired Senator Cameron M. Morrison, dry former governor.

The colorful Reynolds, tall, handsome and blond, triumphed by more than 100,000 majority over Morrison in yesterday's run-off primary on the face of five-sixths of the total returns available tonight.

Likewise, another new political figure was carved in the State as John C. B. Ehringhaus, Elizabeth City attorney, held a comfortable lead over Lieut. Gov. Richard Tillman Fountain for the nomination for governor.

Last of Old Guard.

Morrison's defeat marks the passing of the last of the "old guard," that now defunct political machine of former Senator Furnifold M. Simmons, czar of Democracy in the State for 30 years, who went down to defeat in 1930 before the younger Josiah William Bailey.

The vote for senator, with 1,541 precincts reported out of 1,823 in the State, was:

Morrison, 111,393; Reynolds, 212,353.

For governor, 1,544 precincts:

Ehringhaus, 178,368; Fountain, 163,808.

Fountain's chances of overhauling Ehringhaus were considered very slim. He has not yet conceded defeat.

Vote for senator was virtually the same in both long and short term races for the Democratic nomination. Morrison was appointed to the Senate in 1930 by Gov. Max Gardner when the late Senator Lee Slater Overman, of Salisbury, died. He will serve, under State law, until the November general election.

Newell to Be Opponent.

The short term runs from November until next March 3, the long term from the latter date to March 3, 1939. If Reynolds is elected, he will be senator for six years and four months.

Reynolds' opponent [illegible] general election is Jake F. Newell, Republican dry, Charlotte attorney. However, for 30 years Democratic nomination for senator and State officers has been equivalent to election.

Strange as it seems, Reynolds was defeated many times for public office before he won a nomination. In 1914 he lost a race for Congress, in 1924 for lieutenant governor, and in 1926 for senator against Overman. His career may be likened to that of Senator Bailey, defeated for governor in 1924, elected [illegible] in 1930.

Reynolds overthrow of Morrison, after he had won a 15,000 plurality in the five-cornered first primary of June 4, may be attributed to the following factors:

Prohibition—Politically dry since 1908, North Carolina appears now to be tired of prohibition.

Anti-Morrison sentiment—The senator was condemned for indorsing his neighbor, Frank R. McNinch, State anti-Smith chairman in 1928, as member of the Federal Power Commission.

Antimachine sentiment, and lastly, a tendency among certain voters to "turn out" the "ins."

4 Injured Children Sob By Dead Mother on Road

Whitehall, N. Y., July 3 (A.P.).—A physician called to the scene of an automobile accident today found four little children, all severely injured, kneeling in the road beside the body of their mother and sobbing over and over "Hail, Mary, full of grace—"

William Cronin, 28, of Glens Falls, also was killed and three others injured when two cars met with terrific force between here and Comstock.

13, Including American, Die in Blast.

Manila, Monday, July 4 (A.P.).—Thirteen men, including one American, were killed today in a dynamite explosion aboard a small boat at Aparri, in the northern section of Luzon Island. Under the direction of the American, Ray Hegler, the group had been blasting a sand bar. The cause of the fatal explosion was not ascertained.

LO, THE POOR LOBSTER!

("The Massachusetts Fish and Game Commission has ruled that all lobsters intended for market must be tested by electric shock to determine their fitness. Those that do not wiggle their tails when the current is applied will be rejected."—News item.)

* * * *

In this vale of tears and strife
Bitter is the lobster's life;
As he roams the ocean bed
Ev'ry hour's filled with dread.

In his search for nourishment
He must keep his mind intent
Ever on detecting what
May be trap or lobster pot.

In his travels he must be Ever vigilant to see
Anything that looks invalid—
Or become a lobster salad.

If he strays into a pot
He is placed upon the spot;
Soon upon the fishing docks
He must stand electric shocks!

Massachusetts craves to tell
If a lobster's feeling well;
All its epicures would know
If its pulse is fast or slow.

Only lobsters in "the pink"
Make good food, the people think—
Only those with vim and vigor
In a lobster stew should figure.

If they'd grace a Bay State table
They must show that they are able
To react as is desired
When to batteries they're wired.

If they'd please staid Massachusetts
They must hate electric juice sets.
Proving by each peppy antic
They're the cream of the Atlantic.

Boston wants no fish phlegmatic—
It prefers them acrobatic;
It thinks lobsters old and wormy
If when shocked they are not squirmy.

They must stand the current heated
Even if it's twice repeated
Without quiver or emotion
If they'd get back to the ocean.

Massachusetts, how unfair it
Is to make 'em grin and bear it!
Here's a wish the lobsters fake it,
Grunting hoarsely, "We can take it!"

GETTING NO BREAKS.

H. A. O. CONNELL insists that the other day he heard one woman remark to another: "But the worst of it is that the depression had to come along when times were so hard."

The laziest man in the world is the yachtsman who carries a rowing machine on his boat and takes his exercise on it while the hired man rows 2 miles for some cigarettes.

FORM STUDENTS' HANDICAP.

Golf teachers have noticed that it is impossible to teach a man who has played on public links to take a slow, long back swing. Such players' experience has taught them that if they delay the back swing more than a second somebody will pick up their ball.

After sizing up those feminine bathing suits this summer it would seem that business has turned the corner for the sunburn lotion industry.

WONDER WHY?

Some girls, it appears, refer to those rear seats on the roadsters as "rumple seats."

HERRIOT IS FIGHTING UNBALANCED BUDGET

Strives to Solve Situation Created by Demands for Revision.

Paris, July 3 (U.P.).—Premier Edouard Herriot and his cabinet ministers toiled tonight to solve a critical budgetary situation created by the demands of Socialists and some members of the premier's own Radical Socialist party.

The threat of an unbalanced budget, which will bring the Herriot cabinet to its first real test in Parliament early this week, will force the premier to postpone his return to the Lausanne reparations conference until Wednesday, at least.

The difficulty began yesterday when the finance committee of the Chamber of Deputies revised the budget to satisfy the powerful Socialist and some dissenting Radical Socialists. The Socialists, who are part of the cabinet's majority, may vote against provisions for reducing governmental salaries, and civil service groups are organizing to defeat proposals for reductions of salaries and pensions.

The chamber committee finally pared Herriot's proposed economies down and left the budget unbalanced, reducing proposed reforms from a saving of 2,590,000,000 francs to 1,970,000,000 francs. This would make new taxes necessary if the budget is to be balanced. Strangely, members of Herriot's party and the Socialists forced the changes, whereas the center factions, headed by Andre Tardieu, normally the opposition leader, supported the premier.

With debate on the budget opening in the chamber tomorrow, the cabinet is expected to face a serious situation. Herriot will meet with his ministers again tomorrow to decide definitely whether to fight against the changes or seek a compromise.

Man, 27, Is Convicted In Death of Banker, 84

Manti, Utah, July 3 (A.P.).—Mendon Draper, 27, was convicted today of first degree murder for the fatal beating of Andrew N. Bjerregaard, 84, Ephraim, Utah, banker, at his home April 12.

Prosecutors charged Draper killed Bjerregaard in a quarrel over his attentions to the banker's daughter, Mrs. Ivadell Jensen. A 36-year-old divorcee, she is to go to trial Tuesday on a charge of being an accomplice in the slaying. Draper will be sentenced July 13. The district court jury recommended life imprisonment.

3 IN GERMANY SLAIN IN POLITICAL FIGHTS

Score Are Injured as Riots Are Prevalent Over Whole Nation.

Berlin, July 3 (A.P.).—Three persons were killed and a score or more injured in Sunday's political clashes throughout the Reich.

At Essen a Nazi-Communist clash ended with one fatality, and a Communist-police pitched battle brought death for one policeman.

Communists shouted "Kill the police dogs!" at the sports meeting, whereupon the police guards resisted with firearms. One of their number was riddled with bullets.

A Hitlerite was slain in a Nazi-Communist setto and two Communists were hurt. Communist rowdies fired into a group of pedestrians who failed to answer their shout of "Hail Moscow!" wounding two persons.

Seven were wounded in a Nazi-Reichsbanner disturbance at Neuruppin, and at Stuttgart several were injured in similar disturbances, while 80 were arrested.

A Communist was slain in a clash with police at Eschwege. The police had tried to separate the Communists and the Nazis. Three persons were injured.

The Nation's eyes were turned anxiously toward Munich, the Bavarian capital, at the opening of the Reichstag election campaign, but the day passed quietly despite parades by both the Nazis and the Republican Reichsbannermen under the new decree permitting uniforms.

Man, Accused of Huge Fraud, Expires in Jail

Anamosa, Iowa, July 3 (A.P.).—George E. Huckins, 43, awaiting a third retrial for allegedly promoting a $3,000,000 scheme that promised investors 26 to 52 per cent on their money, died of heart disease today in the Jones County Jail here.

Huckins and his father, Elmer S. Huckins, were said to have told friends they made huge profits by wholesaling "second" cigars and many Middle Westerners, mostly in Iowa and Wisconsin, invested in their enterprise.

Car Upset at Curve Kills Youth.

Seaford, Del., July 3 (A.P.).—Callihan C. Thompson, 21, of this town, was found dead in an overturned automobile near here today by Garfield Moore, of Bethel, Md. Police said wheel marks indicated the car had skidded off the highway while rounding a curve.

BONUS VETERANS TO STAGE PARADE UP AVENUE TODAY

and his headquarters unit will be in the van and a section of veterans who received decorations from this and foreign governments during the World War will be near the front.

Last night no musical organizations had indicated they would provide music for the parade. Apparently the parade will be practically a mute one, with only the beat of marching feet to mark the rhythm of the occasion. A somewhat tattered though enthusiastic bugle and drum corps—three drummers and three buglers—yesterday marched and countermarched at Anacostia and this outfit will probably lead the procession.

The line of march will begin at Peace Monument, with the paraders assembling on side streets in the vicinity. The parade will move up the Avenue to Fifteenth street. At Fifteenth street it will swerve south on Constitution avenue, where it will disband. The procession will not come within reviewing distance of the White House, except perhaps from the Executive Mansion's highest windows.

Thousands of Washingtonians yesterday visited the camp at Anacostia. All through the day hundreds of local and out-of-town automobiles were parked in a long and thick fringe about the camp and the lanes leading in and out from Chicago street were filled with traffic.

Walk About Cantonment.

Many visitors got out of their cars and walked about the mushroom cantonment. They peered interestedly and curiously at the various forms of shelter.

All who visit the camp are impressed with the savoir faire of the veterans and their families. A genuine community spirit seems to prevail. The fast-diminishing larders apparently are causing little concern. Babies played in the dirt, ukeleles and quartets made music, and a number of impromptu ball games were in progress.

The health situation seems to be improving in the camps. The ten cases of dysentery have been pronounced not of the epidemic type. Most of the ailments now being treated by the medical centers are of a minor type.

Warns Against Drinking.

Waters yesterday spoke before a mass of the Anacostia veterans and warned against the possession and drinking of liquor. He said a number of reports of drunkenness and drinking had come to him and he wanted it stopped.

"If a man is caught under the influence of booze or drinking or with a bottle we'll eject him from the army. I'll back Commander Thompson here to the limit in putting this over. We'll not only put him out of camp, but we'll take his automobile, if he has one."

The babies and children of the camp are not feeling the food situation as the adults are. A local dairy is furnishing several hundred gallons of milk daily for the children. However, veterans' leaders said they are having trouble getting enough ice with which to refrigerate the milk.

Two thousand California veterans with a moving picture outfit are expected within 48 hours. Arrivals and departures generally are negligible. About 75 new bonus seekers came in yesterday and about 50 left.

Bonus Camper Is Held After Dive Off Bridge

For the edification of scores of boatmen and hundreds of other spectators, an allegedly drunken bonus marcher yesterday afternoon did a swan dive off the Eleventh Street Bridge into the Anacostia River.

Sumner F. Gohebaski, 34, of New York, the veteran, complained to a companion of the heat. To get relief, he climbed the railing and dived into the river.

John Owens, of Paterson, N. J., another bonus marcher, leaped into the water and held Gohebaski afloat until they were picked up by boatmen in a launch.

Gohebaski was charged with being drunk.

Statues of Mammoth Bones Found in Russia

Tambov, U. S. S. R., July 3 (A.P.).—Fragments of five statues carved from the bones of a mammoth believed to have existed 25,000 years ago have been unearthed near the village of Gagarino, in this province, by an expedition of the Soviet Academy of Science.

Stone implements found on the spot indicated the existence of a prehistoric settlement which members of the expedition said probably was inhabited by people of the Cromagnon race, who ranged western Europe soon after the Glacial Age.

Melbourne, Ont., July 3 (A.P.).—Mrs. Susan Schneider and her son, John Schneider, jr., were killed yesterday when their automobile was struck by a Michigan Central train and dragged 200 feet. Their husband and father, John Schneider died of his injuries in a hospital at London, 17 miles from here.

The bodies were identified today. The Schneiders lived in Detroit.

A heavy rain was believed to have obscured the view of Schneider, who was driving.

by rainfall ranging up to 29 inches at one point in 36 hours, coursed toward the Gulf.

Houses were swept away. Summer cabins were demolished. With wire communication crippled, the fate of several towns was in doubt.

Tree tops cut the flood in the bottom lands. The Rev. W. H. Vernon, Baptist pastor at Batesville, and Mrs. Vernon were rescued today after clinging to a tree eighteen hours.

Toribo Alvarez, 30, drowned in a vain attempt to save Jesus Ozuna, 18, from the Frio flood near Knippa.

The other known dead:

Mike Odell, 19, of Houston; Charles H. Greenleaf, 50, of Olivet, Mich.; Miss Ida Steiler, 29, of Comfort; J. W. Bronson, of Austin; a Mrs. Redman, of Iraan; a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Floyd, of McCamey, age 4, and Charlie Freeman, Talpa, Tex., cotton gin owner.

Odell and Greenleaf, camping at Eagle camp on the Guadalupe, drowned in an attempt to rescue a youth marooned in a tree at Kerrville.

The little town of Hunt, with a population of about 200, was reported washed away, except for a new school building. It is between two branches of the Guadalupe River.

At Kerrville, several houses were swept away. A tourist camp lost about ten cottages. At Legion, 2 miles south of Kerrville, ten small houses, including two stores, were destroyed.

Uvalde, home of John N. Garner, vice presidential nominee of the Democratic party, was cut off from the world for many hours by flood waters.

Tracks on the Santa Fe Railroad, between Merton and Barnhart, were washed out. Talpa, in Coleman County, where 10 inches of rain was reported, was partly inundated.

A 15-foot rise swept down Brady Creek, and a flood at Brady, which was damaged severely by high waters a year ago, was feared.

Woman Wounded; Husband Held.

Sadie Hamilton, colored, 35, was treated at Emergency Hospital for a gunshot wound in the thigh, which she received during an altercation at her home, 335 I street southwest yesterday. Her husband, Thomas Hamilton, was arrested by Fourth Precinct police.

RITES TODAY

JOHN FRANKLIN FULLER.
Retired Government employe and long-time resident of the District whose funeral will be held this afternoon.

VOLUNTEER FIREMEN TO MEET ON REVENUE

Arlington Organization Will Seek Means to Bolster Depleted Treasury.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

With plans for its annual carnival about to be abandoned due to the edict of Commonwealth's Attorney Lawrence W. Douglas to strictly enforce the law prohibiting use of paddle wheels and other games of chance, the principal source of revenue at past carnivals, the Arlington Volunteer Fire Department will meet Wednesday night in the firehouse to determine how to bolster an almost depleted treasury.

A committee consisting of Chief A. C. Scheffel, Deputy Chief Charles Snoots, Lieut. Carl Scheffel, Past Deputy Chief Thomas Snoots and Vice President George F. Cook has been at work for several weeks endeavoring to arrive at some method of producing funds to take the place of the anticipated revenues from the carnival, which had been scheduled for the week of July 11. It is expected the committee will have a definite report to submit at the meeting.

The department had hoped to raise sufficient funds from the carnival to meet the notes due on the engine house and to care for maintenance costs. Unless some other means of financing is found, members state, serious difficulties will result.

The Arlington County Civic Federation will meet tomorrow night in the Lyon Park Community House.

The road committee, of which Monroe H. Stockett is chairman, will make a report with recommendations on the Byrd road act. The chairman says the report will favor Arlington County's withdrawal from the provisions of the act.

Delegates from Arlington Post, No. 139, American Legion, to attend the annual State convention in Alexandria July 31 are as follows:

C. W. Hanger, Herbert H. Porter, Walter Gould, B. M. Hedrick, R. B. James, Stuart Thompson, George Ricker and Robert H. Forman; alternates are: Allen Stevens, C. P. Heins, Chester Eichelberger, J. A. Boston, Edgar W. Pumphrey, W. D. Kline, Charles F. Richie and John Maycock.

Spain Will Offer World Peace Plan

Nation's Pacifist Points to "Failures" at Geneva.

Madrid, July 3 (A.P.).—Eduardo Martinez Alonso, secretary of Spain's "world peace league," announced today Spain soon expected to offer the world a peace plan in which educational methods would supplant international conferences.

"The world has failed to achieve peace by means of the League of Nations' disarmament conference," he said. "Our league proposes to offer a start toward peace from the ground up."

He said Premier Manuel Azana, former Foreign Minister Alejandro Lerroux and other celebrated Spaniards were backing the plan. Senor Lerroux expects soon, Senor Alonso said, to present a bill to congress asking that 10 per cent of the costs of Spanish armaments be dedicated yearly to the creation in Madrid, Seville and Barcelona of "three peace shrines, peace students throughout the world would be invited to seek formulas." Under the plan diplomas would be given to international figures who best represented the cause of peace.

Starving Lepers Invade Town and Terror Rules

Vienna, Austria, July 3 (A.P.).—Dispatches from Bucharest today said 25 lepers from the isolation colony at Tichilesti carried out a threat to "march on Bucharest" and entered the town of Isaccea, spreading panic.

The news of their arrival spread like wildfire through the town and the inhabitants barred their houses until military authorities transported the lepers back to their colony.

The marchers were clad in rags and almost dying from starvation, the reports said. They yelled for food, which was thrown to them from windows.

The situation was said to have arisen because grocers, farmers and other tradesmen, long unpaid by the government, hesitated to deliver further supplies to the colony.

NEW FALLS CHURCH RECTOR INSTALLED

Key of Church Presented to Rev. C. S. McClellan, Jr.; Talks on Patriotism.

The Rev. Clarence Stuart McClellan, jr., of Asheville, N. C., was installed as rector of the parish of Falls Episcopal Church, Falls Church, Va., yesterday morning. The key of the church was presented to him by the senior warden, Jonas T. Unverzagt, who was attended by the junior warden, Charles A. Stewart.

Situated on the highway leading from the Shenandoah Valley into Washington, Falls Church dates back to 1734. George Washington was a member and vestryman. George Mason was also a member of the parish.

Dr. McClellan delivered a sermon on patriotism in which he warned that patriotism "may be too provincial, too sentimental and too conceited and self-sufficient."

"The screaming eagle and the singing of the national anthem with gusto, the overmuch noise that attends some of our national demonstrations are not essentially marks of patriotism," Dr. McClellan declared. "Patriotism must be sane and is often quiet. Patriotism must see and know the national defects of a people as well as their virtues."

Patriotic hymns and anthems were sung by the choir under direction of Mrs. Katherine Davis. Dr. McClellan will conduct a question box and church instruction in addition to his sermon every Sunday morning, it was announced.

Prehistoric Man Hunted in Fezzan

Various Relics Discovered and Serve to Speed Researches.

Tripoli, North Africa, July 3 (A.P.).—Search for a prehistoric man in Fezzan, the Tripolitan hinterland recently conquered by Italitn troops, has been begun by a German expedition headed by Prof. Leo Frobenius, director of the Morphological Institute of Frankfurt.

Various relics of an ancient civilization have been discovered in Tripolitania and Libya. The Italian meteorologist Fantoli found 1,500 objects going back to the Stone Age. The archeologist Corrado Zoli found pictures of animals and an unknown writing chiseled in the rocks.

Prof. Frobenius intends to concentrate his searches around the ancient city of Germa, capital of the Garamanti, a savage, warlike people whom only the Roman consul, Cornelius Balbo, was able to defeat.

Boy, 10, Dies as Car Upsets; Parents Hurt

South Bend, Ind., July 3 (A.P.).—William Kate, 10, son of Mr. and Mrs. Burt Kate, of Detroit, died here of a fractured skull sustained when the automobile driven by his father skidded and overturned on U. S. Highway 31 near New Carlisle, Ind., today.

The parents of the boy are in a serious condition at a local hospital. Mrs. Esther Warren, 41, of Des Moines, and her daughter, Mrs. Ruth Parnell, 22, of Detroit, also were injured.

Man Named Wettiwet Is Held on Rum Charge

New York, July 3 (U.P.).—Federal agents don't know whether to believe it or not, but one of the men they seized on a rumrunner off New York yesterday gave the name of John Wettiwet. He and two other men were arrested aboard the trawler Sylvester, which was loaded with 500 sacks of rye whisky, worth approximately $25,000.

"Go ahead and laugh," he told the agents, "but my name is Wettiwet and I'll stick by it."

Man Killed, Woman And Girl Are Injured

Thamesville, Ontario, July 3 (A.P.).—Edward Essenhouse, 35, of Binghamton, N. Y., was killed, and Mrs. Julia Jacek, of Johnson City, N. Y., and her 12-year-old daughter were injured today when their car collided with one driven by Roy Bishop, of Detroit.

WATERS SURRENDER BODIES OF 3 VICTIMS

Field. Relatives in Barcroft, Va., were notified.

Lynn, with a group four friends, was bathing in the channel of the run when he was seized with cramps. William Pearson, of Woodridge, went to his rescue, and Lynn grabbed him about the neck and dragged him under. Pearson succeeded in breaking the hold.

The others in the group were unable to swim and Pearson barely made the shore. When he had recovered his strength he brought the body to the surface. The body was taken to the funeral home of Hall & Davis at Occoquan. His mother, Mrs. Janie Lynn, and his sister, Mrs. Gladys Anderson, live at 504 Maine avenue southwest.

Patterson's body was found about 15 feet from the diving board at Widewater by Philip Pratt, of Rockville, Md.; G. M. Rogers, of 306 Seventh street northeast, and Willard W. Patterson, 1117 K street northwest, his brother. Members of the Bethesda rescue squad and County Policeman Webb Hersperger aided in the dragging.

The body was removed to the Colonial Funeral Home at Rockville, Md., where it will be viewed by a physician to determine the cause of death. Police said that apparently the death was an accident, but because of the peculiar circumstances, they wanted to take every precaution.

Patterson disappeared while swimming with John Vollmer, who lived at the same address, 306 Seventh street northeast. Vollmer missed Patterson about 1 o'clock, but thought he had wandered off into the woods and did not become alarmed until several hours later. He notified the police about 6:30 o'clock. Patterson is survived by his widow, who lives in Philadelphia, and his mother and brother.

GAS STATION THEFT SUSPECT IS SEIZED

Bethesda Policeman Proves Quicker on Draw Than Man He Arrests.

Had Sergt. Leroy Rodgers, of the Bethesda substation, Montgomery County police, lived in the old border days, he probably would have been one of those much-talked-about "two-gun" sheriffs who tamed bad men with their lightning draw.

When James Hawkins, colored, 28, who gave his address as 4252 Clay street northeast, gave Rodgers the opportunity yesterday, he demonstrated his speed on the draw. Riding with the dawn patrol from the station about 3 a. m., the sergeant saw a colored man walking on Wisconsin avenue about 50 feet from the District line. He drove alongside and asked what the man was doing out at that time in the morning. There have been a number of robberies in that vicinity lately and the police are doubly vigilant. The man started to edge toward the District line as he replied he had been to Rockville.

Sergt. Rodgers jumped from the car and walked up to the man. As he arrived in front of Hawkins, the latter told him it was none of his business what he was doing out and reached for his hip. With a spe ' that left Policemen Roy Davis and James McAuliffe, who were still in the car, gasping, the sergeant snatched his pistol from the holster and poked it into the ribs of Hawkins as grabbed the hand that was reaching for the hip.

Investigation revealed two guns on the man, one on his hip and the other stuck in his waistband. A small satchel he carried contained about $2 in nickels and dimes and 40 pennies. He wore three suits of clothes.

Police believe he is the man who entered the Shell gas station near the District line in Washington and broke open a telephone box and took a collection of pennies and a .32 automatic from a cash drawer. The automatic the man carried in his waistband answered the description of the stolen gun. Washington police viewed the man yesterday and probably will ask that he be turned over to them. In the meantime he is being held in Rockville Jail, charged with carrying concealed weapons.

Charlottesville, Va., July 3.—Letter carriers of Charlottesville yesterday bade farewell to J. L. Smith, who is being retired after 42 years of service.

On behalf of the Letter Carriers Association, L. C. Taylor, secretary, presented Mr. Smith with a walking cane. Expressions of high regard for faithful service were made by James L. Humbert, postmaster, and J. E. Kennie, superintendent of the Charlottesville Postoffice.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, July 3 (A.P.).—Security and commodity exchanges throughout the country will remain closed today in observance of Independence Day. For a large part of Wall street the holiday started at the close of business last Friday, all leading markets with the exception of the New York Cotton Exchange having closed on Saturday.

Stock exchange volume last week was just a trifle beter than the exceedingly small business of the preceding week, but measured in terms of commissions to the brokers it still was decidedly lean. It is said that a number of brokerage firms, whose business is now confined to stocks, are considering plans for opening commodity departments, believing that speculative interest may revive in that direction before the stock market again attracts a following.

Wall street is prepared for another drab showing in steel trade reports this week. Mills suspending for the July 4 holiday will be slower than usual in swinging into production, and it is not improbable that a few of the smaller mills may continue their suspensions indefinitely.

The record of residential building contracts for the first half of 1932 suggests that such business has found a level below which important declines are not likely to occur, says the current bulletin of the F. W. Dodge Corporation. Contracts awarded in the 37 Eastern States during the first half of the year totaled $162,697,900, and preliminary records for June indicate a total lower than any monthly figure shown for residential work thus far in 1932, it is stated.

Capitol—will be denied the many visitors because the building has been closed. The Capitol has been closed before on national holidays, but very rarely on Independence Day. Officials explained that it is being closed this year because there are so many people in town.

Plans of Leaders.

President Hoover and Mrs. Hoover will spend the day at their Rapidan camp. Speaker John N. Garner, the Democratic vice presidential nominee, will work at his desk in the Capitol. Cabinet officers and other officials are planning typical Fourth of July celebrations, with firecrackers for their children.

Massing of colors of the Nation, to the accompaniment of music by the United States Marine Band, will mark the opening of the celebration tonight at the Sylvan Theater. Senator James E. Watson, of Indiana, will be the principal speaker. "America" will be sung by Eva Whitford Lovette and Mathilde W. Kolb.

A tableau of the thirteen original States will be presented by young ladies representing State societies of the District. The Declaration of Independence will be read by Robert Downing and Boy Scout Karl Clarke will lead in the oath of allegiance to the flag.

Program to Go on Air.

Thomas P. Littlepage, general chairman, will preside, and Dr. Coleman Nevils, president of Georgetown University, will give the invocation. The program will be broadcast by the Columbia network of 61 stations, including two shortwave lengths to Europe. This portion of the program will be concluded with the singing of "The Star-Spangled Banner." After a 15-minute intermission, the pyrotechnic exhibition will be given.

The fireworks display will include a number of elaborate pieces, depicting events in the life of Washington. The Spirit of 76, Washington Crossing the Delaware and the Liberty Bell are among pictures that will be thrown against the sky in flaring powder. The display will open with a 300-foot set piece of welcome, and will be concluded with a roaring finale of 150 bursting shells.

The program has been arranged by the Office of Public Buildings and Public Parks, the Community Center Department, the United States and District Bicentennial Commissions and the Greater National Capital Committee. Claude W. Owen is chairman of the fireworks display committee.

Takoma Park Program.

Citizens of Takoma Park will celebrate the Fourth in real old-fashioned style, beginning this morning and continuing throughout the day. The first event will be a pageant parade, beginning at 9:30, depicting "The Life of George Washington."

Maj. Gen. Amos A. Fries, U. S. A., retired, past department commander of the American Legion, will be the principal speaker at patriotic exercises after the parade in the grounds of the Trinity Episcopal Church. An athletic program will be featured by a 10-mile marathon, starting from the Virginia side of Memorial Bridge at 1:30 p. m. The Takoma celebration will be concluded with a concert and fireworks display at 8 p. m.

Gen. Fries, together with the Rev. Edmund A. Walsh, will be the principal speakers at patriotic exercises of the American Legion in Central High School Auditorium at 1:30 p. m. Father Walsh, who is regent of the School of Foreign Service at Georgetown University, will speak on "Modern Russia." A movie, "George Washington—His Life and Times," will be shown.

Fraser Also to Speak.

Ferdinand G. Fraser, department commander of the legion, will also be heard at these exercises. John Thomas Taylor, vice chairman of the national legislative committee of the legion, will preside. The ceremony will be given a Nation-wide broadcast in connection with a program by the Marine Band from the Marine Barracks.

Judge Robert E. Mattingly will address the Association of Oldest Inhabitants at a celebration in the old Engine House, Nineteenth and H streets northwest. The association has observed Independence Day since 1865.

Celebrations will be held by the Boys Club of Washington at Camp Reeder on the Wicomico River, and by the Y. M. C. A. at Camp Letts. Parents and friends will visit the camps.

Other Celebrations.

The League for the Larger Life will hold patriotic exercises and athletic events at Calvert Beach, Md. Buses will leave Washington at 9 a. m. A fireworks display will be given tonight.

A huge home-coming celebration will be given by citizens of East Washington in the Eastern High School auditorium, beginning at 9:30 a. m. Athletic events for boys and girls have been arranged, and there will be a baseball game between the Monte Weaver Midgets and the New Haven Midgets.

This program is being sponsored by the Lincoln Park, Stanton Park, Trinidad and Northeast Citizens Associations and the Northeast Business Men's Association, in cooperation with the Community Center and Playground Department of the District.

Celebratons will be held for parents and children vacationing at Camp Good Will and Camp Pleasant, the summer camps of the Associated Charities.

Steel Production Drops to New Low

Operations for Week at 14 to 15 Per Cent; Many Mills Closed.

Cleveland, Ohio, July 3 (A.P.).—Steelmaking operations last week were at the lowest in modern times, but various factors tempered the descent of the industry into the July 4 valley, the magazine Steel said today.

The decline was halted, the magazine said, by the year's third best week in structural orders and moderately brisk specifying against expiring hot-rolled strip and cold-rolled bar contracts which was prompted by new pricing methods entailing an advance for many buyers beginning with the third quarter.

Some producers closed June 30, instead of waiting for July 2. A few are to resume July 5, some July 11, and others will wait for orders to accumulate, the magazine continued.

Steelmaking operations for the week ended July 2 were at 14 to 15 per cent, and, considering the uncertainty of resumption, this week may turn in an average as low as 13 per cent. Pig iron production is on almost an exact parity with steel, the rate for June being 14.2 per cent.

GLEN ECHO PARK

The big double-barreled celebration at Glen Echo Park over the three-day week-end attracted a great crowd to the resort Saturday and yesterday, with a high-water mark in attendance expected to be reached today.

The Crystal swimming pool was one of the popular spots, while all through the park picnic parties made merry. Teeming with activity were the big roller coasters, the airplane swings, the old mill, midway and dozens of other amusements.

Saturday evening the beautiful ballroom hummed with activity as the dancers enjoyed the latest tunes from MacWilliams and his band.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

At least for the time being in America, the career of one of the most extraordinar, of contemporary box-office attractions has come to an end.

Katharine Cornell terminated her tour in Rudolf Besier's "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" in the Curran Theater, San Francisco, Calif., with last Saturday's matinee performance, directly after which she left for New York, whence she sails on Thursday, July 7, for her holiday in England and Austria, her first vacation in two years—barring one brief respite during which she paid her supporting cast full salaries while she caught a breath of fresh air in Bermuda, if memory serves correctly.

There are a few salient facts concerning the epochal history of this amazing drama that are worth repetition. Miss Cornell accepted the Besier play for production in America after it had been refused by 27 producers and actors in this country. It was given its American premiere in the Hanna Theater, Cleveland, Ohio, on January 29, 1931, and opened at the Empire Theater in New York on February 9. It was additionally presented in Boston, Philadelphia, Washington, Baltimore, Pittsburgh, Detroit, Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City, Los Angeles and San Francisco. Miss Cornell enacting the role of Elizabeth Barrett 541 times. The record box-office receipts were, oddly enough, compiled in Philadelphia during Holy Week when $33,657 was collected in paid admissions. The total receipts of the play in its sixteen months before the American public are estimated at $1,500,000.

This recapitulation is printed solely for the comfort and solace of the 27 inspired gentlemen who coldly turned "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" down!

Invitations are out for the formal official preview of "Le Pantheon de la Guerre" in the Panorama Building, New Jersey avenue at C street, Monday night, July 11. This is the mammoth panorama of the World War and the foremost figures of the Allied countries sponsored by Harry M. Crandall, founder of the theaters formerly bearing his name in and about the National Capital, now constituting the Warner Brothers chain, which is to be presented locally for a year prior to its removal to the World's Exposition in Chicago in 1933. In the years since its completion, it has been viewed by approximately 8,000,000 in Paris alone.

As you may have noticed, Wesley Eddy did not return to Loew's Fox Theater this week with the "Hell's Belles" revue, as was so emphatically announced when Baltimore borrowed him. Now, I understand, he is being held a second week at the Century Theater in the Monumental City to break in Conchita Montenegro and the "On the Riviera" unit, with which he will return to the Capital next week.

I have not as yet learned the name of the unit with which he will be detained in Baltimore the week after that!

George Dewey Washington, at the Earle, aims high in his choice of selections. In the repertoire of this richly gifted barytone are "Without a Song," sung by Lawrence Tibbett in the picture first called "The Southerner" and later renamed "The Prodigal," and "That's Why Darkies Were Born," sung by Everett Marshall in George White's "Scandals." The vocalist with the patriotic name does them as ample justice as his distinguished operatic contemporaries.

If that bootleg firecracker you've had hidden out in the garage these past few days doesn't go off, fevven's sake don't pick it up and blow on the fuse!

SESSION OF LEGION MAY HEAR HOOVER

Hurley Also Will Be Invited to Address Parley in Alexandria.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,

Phone Alexandria 523.

Invitations will be extended to President Hoover and Secretary of War Hurley to address the fourteenth annual convention of the Virginia Division, American Legion, in Alexandria, July 31, August 1, 2 and 3. Should the President accept the invitation, he will be asked to make the opening speech, August 1 and Secretary Hurley will be asked to address the legionnaires later the same day, or on a later date. Other nationally known speakers will be on the program.

Many events have been planned for the entertainment of the 2,500 or 3,000 visitors expected, among which will be a boat trip to Quantico, where the visitors will witness a review of the United States Marines. Other events include boxing bouts, baseball games and a banquet.

The convention will start Sunday, July 31, with a special church service. The executive committee will hold a preliminary meeting, and registration of delegates will follow. The first business session will open at 9 a. m., Monday. The convention will close August 3, with election of officers.

It is understood five cities will bid for the next convention, Richmond, Bristol, Norfolk, Roanoke and Radford.

The funeral of the Rev. William McDougall, who died Saturday in the Alexandria Hospital, will be held at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon from the First Presbyterian Church, conducted by the pastor of the church, the Rev. Dr. William B. McIlwaine, jr., assisted by the Rev. Pierce S. Ellis, pastor of the First Baptist Church. Burial will be in Ivy Hill Cemetery.

Charles Gantzmel, of 306 Duke street, is in Alexandria Hospital with a stab wound in one leg, and a warrant has been sworn out by Carlton Snootz, of 311 South Fairfax street, for assault. Gantzmel declines to discuss his injury or state who stabbed him, and the Alexandria police are investigating the case, but so far have only been able to ascertain that a fight was staged in front of Snoots' house.

A colored man was brought to the Alexandria Hospital shortly before 10 o'clock last night, having been struck by an automobile driven by L. E. Little, of Hanover, Pa., on the Lee highway, 1 mile west of Centerville.

The man was unconscious and had a fractured left leg, lacerations of his hands and internal injuries. He had a card in his pocket with the name of Charles Newman. Little brought him to the hospital.

UNIVERSALISM SEEN IN HISPANIC AMERICA

Dr. J. A. Mackay Analyzes Latin Thought at Institute of Public Affairs.

Charlottesville, Va., July 2 (A.P.).—Dr. John A. Mackay, secretary of the board of foreign missions of the Presbyterian Church in the United States, speaking before the Institute of Public Affairs, today commented on the universalistic trend in Hispanic-American thought.

The address was delivered at vesper services which opened the annual institute. Dr. Mackay said the chief dailies in the capital cities of Spanish-speaking nations "lead the world's press in the supply of foreign news offered to their readers while the book market is being inundated by translations from innumerable foreign tongues."

He characterized the Spanish outlook as one that recognizes a man as "the child of His works," that accepts all men as equal.

Turning then to Hispanic-American individualism the speaker, who Friday returned from Mexico, where he had been affiliated with the Young Men's Christian Association, said Latin-American thinkers "are generous to the dead, generous to the vanquished and to criminals, but are cruelly ungenerous to their rivals."

Exploitation of Rebel Ideas.

"Another expression of the same quality," he continued, "is the tendency which becomes increasingly common among some revolutionary governments in Hispanic America of exploiting revolutionary principles for private ends. There are cases in which communistic principles are being applied by functionaries who seek only personal aggrandizement. Moderately wealthy men are dispossessed of their goods in the name of community welfare by individuals who invoke social radicalism without possessing the selflessness of the true revolutionary. There is no real danger of communism becoming a social reality in Latin America, but there is a real danger of its being exploited in the interests of a new plutocracy."

The speaker said he had found Hispanic-American people irreligious.

"Irreligion," he asserted, "not only exists as an attitude; it is promoted as a dogma. A leading newspaper spells "God" with a small letter 'dios.' The forward look is inculcated as against the upward look. 'God,' says one, 'has handed over politics to men and retained religion for himself.'"

Meeting to Last 2 Weeks.

Dr. Mackay's address was heard by leaders in State, national and international thought who are gathered here for the institute which will be in session through July 16.

Antitrust laws will be discussed tomorrow at the opening session by Gilbert H. Montague, James A. Emery, general counsel of the National Association of Manufacturers; C. E. Bockus, president of the National Coal Association, and Goldwaite H. Dorr, an attorney.

The test suit started last week in Lynchburg by the Department of Justice to obtain eventually a ruling by the Supreme Court of the United States on a common selling agency as a means of rescuing the coal industry from its present doldrums, undoubtedly, will be discussed at this round table.

The country church and the rural minister, county government and our Latin American relations are other subjects which will be discussed at the busy morning session.

Round Table Speakers.

Dr. Henry W. McLaughlin will preside over the rural ministry round table, and addresses will be made by the Right Rev. F. D. Goodwin, D. D., bishop coadjutor of the diocese of Virginia, and Dr. Lavens Thomas, 111, of the Emory University School of Theology.

At the round table discussion on county government which will follow, papers will be read by Dr. Warren F. Draper, of the Virginia health department; Dr. Frank Bane, director of the American Association of Public Welfare Officials; Leon M. Bazile, Richmond attorney, and Dr. Paul W. Wager, of the University of North Carolina. Dr. Harold W. Dodds will lead the discussion.

Dr. Leland H. Jenks, research associate of the Harvard bureau of economic research in Latin America, and H. H. Pike, jr., vice president of H. H. Pike & Co., will address the round table on Latin-American relations. Dr. C. H. Haring will preside.

Education as Peace Step To Be Proposed by Spain

Madrid, July 3 (A.P.).—Eduardo Martinez Alonzo, secretary of Spain's "World Peace League," announced today Spain soon expected to offer the world a peace plan in which educational methods would supplant international conferences.

"The world has failed to achieve peace by means of the League of Nations' disarmament conference," he said. "Our league proposes to offer a start toward peace from the ground up." He said Premier Manuel Azana, former Foreign Minister Alejandro Lerroux and other celebrated Spaniards were backing the plan.

Economy Strikes Veteran Pilot of Capitol Subway

R. C. Perkins Forced to Retire After 22 Years of Service and Association With Political Leaders; Big Men Easiest to Get Along With, He Says.

(Associated Press.)

A cheery figure familiar for two decades to most of the Presidents, all the Vice Presidents and all the senators, Robert C. Perkins, disappears this week from senatorial haunts. He was cut down by the economy program.

As pilot since 1910 of one vehicle or another shuttling between the Capitol and Senate Office Building, he has watched them come and go from Vice President Sherman to Charles Curtis.

Now 68, he has been retired under the drastic new government savings policy, but he views it philosophically. The times change, Perkins concedes heartily, but regardless of the years "the big men are the easiest to get along with."

"Only the little fellows in public life are fussy about things," he continued, and displayed the warm place he holds in his heart for the leaders of the era in which he began—William O. Bradley, John Sharp Williams and "Bob" Taylor.

"Those three were birds," he chuckled reminiscently.

"President Harding was a prince," he added. "We used to have lots of talks when he was Senator.

"Vice President Coolidge only rode the cars when it was raining outside. No, I don't think Wilson ever was on one of these cars.

"President Hoover, I believe, rode sometimes when he was Secretary of Commerce or as food administrator.

"I used to drive down the corridor to pick up Vice President Marshall and meet him half way from his office."

Perkins came here in 1907 from Caney, Kans., to a job as House doorkeeper.

He went over to the Senate side in 1910, driving the first vehicle that plied in the subway between the two buildings, with Vice President Sherman, his first passenger.

Two cars were put in use—massive, ten-seater, battery-propelled, jaunting automobiles with two drivers' seats and steps.

Monorail cars, made by the Navy Department, came into use about 15 years ago. Perkins drove one continually until yesterday, when he began the task of teaching his successor who takes over the job today.

SHRINE DEDICATED AT OLD FORT SITE

Speakers at "Necessity" Fete Recall Early Battles of Washington.

Uniontown, Pa., July 3 (A.P.).—George Washington was en route to recapture Pittsburgh, "the Fort of the Forks," which he engaged in his first battle—the opening gun of the French and Indian War—speakers recalled at the dedication of Fort Necessity, near Uniontown, today.

The strife, ending in a draw, marked the first confederated action by the Colonists; set off the Seven Years War in Europe, and led to many changes in the maps of the old world and the new.

The two-day program of ceremonies, dedicating a reproduction of the original fort as a State and national shrine, drew approximately 10,000 persons from a dozen States; civil and military leaders from Washington and representatives of the French, English and Canadian governments.

On his first trip into western Pennsylvania—delivering a warning to the French to keep "hands off" the Ohio valley—Washington unconsciously selected the location of Pittsburgh, recommending a fort be built at the junction of the Allegheny and Monongahela Rivers, historians pointed out in addresses today.

The next year, in 1754, a force of Virginians were sent to erect Fort Pitt. With the job but half done, the French arrived and drove off the Virginians, completing the project themselves and naming it Fort Duquesne. Washington was on his way to Pittsburgh to recapture the stronghold when intercepted by the French and Indians at Fort Necessity.

Rites Held in Managua For Marine Sergeant

Managua, Nicaragua, July 3 (A.P.).—Funeral services for Sergt. Edward Hall Schmierer, of the United States Marines, slain by a native lieutenant last Thursday in the village of San Isidro, were held here today. The body will be taken aboard the U. S. S. Vega at Corinto Tuesday and sent to the United States.

Schmierer, a lieutenant in the Nicaraguan National Guard, was allegedly shot while asleep by Lieut. Roberto Gonzalez. Patrols searching hills near San Isidro expected to capture Gonzalez shortly. Schmierer's next of kin is his mother, Mrs. Mary Schmierer, of Philadelphia.

Retired Authority on Merit System in Civil Service to Continue Writing.

Appointed by President Hoover, E. Claude Babcock, former national commander of the Disabled American Veterans, formally assumed the secretaryship of the Civil Service Commission Saturday when John T. Doyle was removed from the office under the retirement provisions of the new economy bill after 49 years of continuous service.

Mr. Doyle, a nationally known authority on the merit system, was the sole personnel of the commission in 1883, when the civil service rolls of the Government contained less than 15,000 names. Today there are 700 workers in the department which supervises the work of 420,000 persons in the different departments of the Government.

During his regime, Mr. Doyle was instrumental in putting civil service into effect in Chicago and Kansas City, and in the nine States where it is now installed.

Mr. Doyle said that he would continue to write books on the merit system and devote the remainder of his time to golf.

John Gilbert Best Man at Rites Culminating "Perfect Romance."

Beverly Hills, Calif., July 3 (A.P.).—Guests who attended the quiet wedding of Jean Harlow and Paul Bern said today they had witnessed the culmination of "a perfect Hollywood romance."

The platinum blonde of the screen had as her wedding gift the deed to one of the most picturesque homes in Beverly Hills, where Bern, a motion picture executive, has lived as a bachelor. They said they will take a long trip next fall. Present studio activities forbid an immediate honeymoon.

The ceremony was performed last night by Superior Judge Leon Yankwich at the Beverly Hills home of the bride's mother and stepfather, Mr. and Mrs. Marino Bello. John Gilbert was best man.

Railroad Credit Fund Loans Are Delayed by Collections

(Associated Press.)

The Railroad Credit Corporation has authorized $19,589,563 of loans to carriers needing money to meet fixed charges, but thus far has been able actually to lend only $15,938,690.

This situation was reported yesterday to the Interstate Commerce Commission which requires monthly statements as a result of its decision of last December allowing the railroads to raise rates through surcharges, provided the money be used to prevent the less prosperous carriers' going into bankruptcy.

The Railroad Credit Corporation was formed by the carriers to execute the plan. Bankrupt roads and strictly passenger roads are ineligible for such loans.

The railroads are allowed 40 days after the end of each month to send in moneys derived from the increases. From January 4 to May 1, the increases netted $20,783,249, of which $5,516,655 was collected in April.

The corporation has been assisted in meeting the situation by the Reconstruction Corporation. Some of the large roads have needed such sums that it was impossible for the railroad organization to finance them, and the Reconstruction Corporation has made loans to them. It also has advanced money to some roads until such time as the Railroad Credit Corporation was in funds. These advances were secured by irrevocable orders on the credit corporation, and a number have been repaid.

A DOLE IN DISGUISE.

Numerous improvements have been made in the emergency relief measures passed by the Senate and House since they went to conference. In dealing with the pork-barrel items in both the Garner and Wagner bills the conference committee has taken into consideration the widespread protest against further extravagant construction. Speaker Garner sought to hand out $1,200,000,000 to all parts of the country in the form of pork. Senator Wagner's program called for a $500,000,000 bond issue for public works. The conferees came to realize that relief at about $12,000 per job was unwarranted extravagance. It remains to be seen, however, whether the confereees can satisfy the appetites of politicians with only $300,000,000 worth of pork.

With the evils of the pork barrel mitigated in the conference agreement, another phase of the relief measure comes to the fore. The conferees are reported to have accepted that portion of the Garner bill which would open the Treasury to 122,000,000 citizens. It reads as follows:

> To aid in financing agriculture, commerce, and industry, including facilitating the exportation of agricultural and other products, and to assist in the relief of unemployment, the corporation is authorized and empowered to make loans * * * to any person.

The last three words should be underscored and written in bold-faced type. It is obvious that this provision would not conserve the funds of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for the purpose of stimulating industry and creating jobs. The resources of this agency would be available to almost any person and for almost any purpose. Under these terms the act ought to provide about ten times as much capital as it does so that every one would be able to obtain a loan without undue discrimination.

It is true that the bill provides that "all loans made under this section shall be fully and adequately secured." But it also says in the same paragraph that "such loans may be made directly upon promissory notes or by way of discount or rediscount of obligations tendered for the purpose." Apparently any individual could go to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and obtain a loan upon his note, providing that he could not raise the money elsewhere.

The bill passed by the Senate would limit use of the $1,500,000,000 reconstruction fund to quasi-public agencies for self-liquidating projects. It is inconceivable that the Senate will accept an arrangement that would open the Treasury to the general public. The Garner bill is a disguised dole. While pretending to strengthen the credit structure of the Nation and to pave the way for a resumption of normal industrial activity, it would allow individuals to fritter away the credit of the Government. This section is an egregious twin to the pork-barrel provision which has been virtually eliminated by the conferees.

Almost nothing has been said to the public about the camouflaged dole in the Garner bill. Apparently the Speaker foisted this outrage upon the House in the Democratic caucus on the relief bill. It is a sly attempt to finance the "forgotten man" by robbing taxpayers. It is one of the most flagrant attempts to despoil the Government for the benefit of private individuals that has ever been exposed. Unlimited "relief" of this kind would inevitably bring the Government to bankruptcy.

By all means the Senate should reject the conference report until this vicious feature is eliminated. If the Senate fails to do its duty, President Hoover ought to veto the relief bill. Some other provisions in the compromise are still objectionable, but the disguised dole makes the measure intolerable. If Congress really wishes to strike a blow at the depression it will never allow the Garner dole to become law.

GERMANY'S PROPOSAL.

Chancellor von Papen of Germany has made a formal demand at the Lausanne conference for revision of the Treaty of Versailles as a necessary preliminary for German participation in world economic reconstruction. In a statement to the press the chancellor announces that if revision re-establishes German equality and security he will deem it possible for Germany to "pay her share in the form of a contribution which would have the natural result of re-establishing German economic and business equilibrium as well as that of the world."

The opening of the Treaty of Versailles to revision would take Europe back to 1919, with all the uncertainties of that period plus the difficulty of cancelling what has been done since that time. Several important nations owe their independence and even their existence to the Treaty of Versailles. "Security" for Germany, as demanded by Chancellor von Papen, would be construed by these war-born nations as a deadly peril to them. Poland, in particular, is vitally concerned with the preservation of the Treaty of Versailles as it stands.

France, above all, depends for its security upon the Treaty of Versailles. The smaller allies of France are bound in a constellation by virtue of that treaty, and so long as it exists they can expect to hold their own against efforts by Germany to recover a dominating station in Europe. Although "revision" is an elastic word, which may mean much or little, it is inconceivable that France would risk all it has gained by agreeing to a conference on revision.

By demanding revision the German chancellor wins uproarious approval at home, but at the same time he stiffens French resistance to reparations concessions. His offer to "pay contributions" after France has surrendered vital questions of territory is apt to stir up intense indignation in France and allied countries.

The Lausanne conference is about to suspend, with the relations of the powers in worse shape than when it began. Germany and France are diametrically opposed on fundamental questions. The outlook for economic co-operation in Europe is dark indeed.

EMERGENCY FARMING.

In view of the widespread discussion of relieving unemployment by settling destitute families on land not now in use, it is worth while to note that a scientific study of the subject has been made. After a careful survey, the National Land-Use Planning Committee concluded that the back-to-the-farm movement offers only meager opportunities of relief.

Many people who have had no experience in farming are inclined to think that they could support themselves on any plot of ground available. For the most part the people who are returning to the land and improving their positions thereby are those who moved to the cities during boom times but who did not break their former agricultural connections. Industrial workers who have had no experience in farming and who have no capital to begin operations find the experiment very difficult.

"The available supply of improved farms adapted to commercial production of general crops and livestock," says the planning committee's report, "does not hold out promise of extensive opportunity for the unemployed to improve their condition in this way." All the best land was appropriated long ago. Much of the land that is now available was abandoned in boom times because the owners or tenants found that it could not be profitably cultivated. With agricultural prices at their present level, there is not much hope of obtaining more than a meager subsistence from abandoned farms. New lands can be obtained only through expensive reclamation projects that cost more than they would be worth at the present time.

Furthermore, farming requires capital and equipment. Unemployed families seldom have sufficient capital to begin farming on a proper scale. Where could such capital be obtained? Certainly no governmental agency has funds for such an experiment, and if the Treasury were full the Government could not safely embark upon such a socialistic enterprise.

Overproduction is the bane of agriculture. The country ought to have fewer and not more farmers. Waste land should be put to growing timber and other profitable crops, rather than increasing the surplus of staple foodstuffs. But obviously the growing of timber is out of the question as an emergency relief industry.

In so far as the unemployed look to the land for relief, the committee concluded, such relief must take the form of subsistence cultivation. On that basis the migration farmward may be justified, but the unemployed ought not to be deluded by false hopes that their problems can be solved by this simple process.

PHILIPPINE BILL DELAYED.

The Senate has shown good judgment in sidetracking the Philippine independence bill until next December. Sponsors of the Hawes-Cutting bill, designed to hamstring the Philippines and then cut them adrift, contended that the issue could be disposed of in a few hours. Why should the Senate deliberate at length upon the launching of a new nation when the House disposed of the question in 40 minutes? But a few senators thought otherwise. The Senate debated the measure for several days without making much headway. Senator Robinson deserves a vote of thanks for postponing the matter until the next session.

In the meantime real friends of the Philippines will have a chance to bring order out of the chaos that has been created by the independence measures before Congress. Pressure was brought to bear upon Congress by agricultural interests which seek to eliminate Filipino competition. Otherwise the bill probably would not have been considered at all during this busy session. When the issue is again brought forward it is to be hoped that more attention will be given to the welfare of the Philippines and to the position of the United States as a protector of the islands.

A new declaration of policy with regard to the Philippines, when Congress has time adequately to consider the problem, would not be amiss. But any attempt to fix a date on which the Filipinos shall obtain their freedom must defeat its own purpose. Independence is not a mere act of Congress. It is a condition that must be attained. As soon as Congress proclaims that the islands will be cut adrift on a certain date their progress will be arrested and they will probably become more dependent than they are at present.

Friends of the Philippines can prevent this blunder by concentrating upon a plan that will enable the Filipinos gradually to assume more responsibility in the conduct of their own affairs, while retaining the protection and guidance of the United States. In this way the islands can obtain all that their people desire, without the dangers of economic collapse or of military conquest by some Oriental power.

HONORING STEPHEN T. MATHER.

In many national parks today memorial plaques will be dedicated in honor of the late Stephen T. Mather, who worked long and successfully as leader in the movement to create national parks, monuments, and other reservations for the enjoyment of the public. In parks, forests, along highways, and in several cities during the next few days ceremonies will be held in memory of Mr. Mather.

One of the most impressive memorials to Mr. Mather is the Mather Memorial Parkway, in the State of Washington. This was dedicated last Saturday. It is a tract of sixty square miles in the Cascade range, of varying elevations, and containing magnificent forest growths. A State road extends through it, but with this exception the parkway is to be preserved in its pristine state.

The labors performed by Mr. Mather were unselfish and wholly for the public. It is a testimony to the public spirit of Western citizens that they give grateful acknowledgment to the memory of Mr. Mather.

TRAINED CITIZENS.

By GOV. ALBERT C. RITCHIE, of Maryland.

A well regulated and disciplined citizen soldiery was the most cherished administrative measure of George Washington as President. It was the most important of the recommendations to the Continental Congress which he was requested to make at the close of the War for Independence. Washington believed the Nation's hope of securing future tranquillity, dignity and respectability rested upon a national defense rooted and grounded in the citizenry of the country. He was thinking of a defensive plan, a plan which would guard our Nation against the calamities of war brought to us by an aggressor. In the light of his experience he placed his reliance, in no uncertain terms, upon the citizen soldier as the "palladium of our security."

George Washington was a believer in the principle that every citizen who enjoys the protection of a free government owes a proportion of what he has to that government and should give his personal service when necessary in its defense. It is with regret that I find history records the fact that the Congress failed to enact the laws necessary to bring into being this defensive plan conceived by Washington and his advisors. For more than a hundred years we floundered like a ship without a rudder, without military policy of any kind. The Washington plan was actually lost in the archives of the Congressional Library, where it remained for a century, covered with dust, until finally brought to light and made the basis of our national defense system.

Since the days of Valley Forge a century and a half have passed, but the principles involved in the question of the defense of the Nation remain the same. History has recorded throughout these years our distressing unpreparedness, with the resulting loss in men and material, all of which is translated into increased public debt and burdensome taxes. In 1920, following the experiences of the World War, the National Congress enacted the present national defense act, having for its main purpose the proper defense of the Nation and the consequent development of a citizen army. In this legislation, for the first time in the history of our country, the Congress took cognizance of Washington's military plan for defense. In my judgment the present national defense act is one of the most constructive pieces of legislation ever placed upon the statute books. There is provided a small Regular Army, necessary for the training of the citizen soldiers and for garrisoning our overseas possessions, but the main reliance in a great emergency is placed where it should be, upon the citizens of the Nation.

The National Guard, the Organized Reserves, the Officers Reserve Corps, the Reserve Officers Training Corps and the Civilian Military Training Camps are so placed in the scheme of national defense that they all fit uniquely into the plan, each in its proper sphere, in such a manner as to produce, if intelligently and properly administered, that trained and equipped first line of defense upon which the Nation can rely in any emergency. There is nothing militaristic about this set-up. In fact, it is non-militaristic, because it rests upon the citizens themselves.

Some there are in this land—well-meaning perhaps but misguided—who would abolish important features of the prescribed training, but in the light of developments today, in the East and elsewhere, our Nation can with safety do little less than is being done.

Whole-heartedly I favor peace and believe in economy, but I think it folly to permit ourselves to be misled by those who, under the guise of economy, would eliminate any part of our present small, carefully thought out defense training plan.

The Regular Army, the National Guard, the Officers Reserve Corps, the R. O. T. C. and the C. M. T. C. have each a definite place and should be adequately supported. It is with keen appreciation that I note the interest of the American Legion in this subject, and I am glad also to enlist in the cause of proper and adequate national defense.

John Adams said of Independence Day in 1776: "It will be celebrated by succeeding generations as the great anniversary festival. It ought to be commemorated as the day of deliverance by solemn acts of devotion to God Almighty. It ought to be solemnized with pomp and parade, with shows, games, sports, guns, bells, bonfires, and illuminations, from one end of this continent to the other, from this time forward forever more."

JULY THE FOURTH.

Happy birthday, Uncle Sam!
And may this your comfort be!
No that you are trouble-free;
Not that lazy-like and gay
You may spend your holiday,
But that all your children true
Share the cares that fall to you.

Happy birthday, Uncle Sam!
Happy, though the skies are gray,
And uncertain seems the way,
In the thought that faithful still,
With an undivided will,
All for one and one for all,
We shall rally when you call.

Happy birthday, Uncle Sam!
May the skies of freedom ring
With the hymn we bravely sing;
May you find that we remain
Still unspoiled by glittering gain,
Sound at heart and body stout,
In these troubled days of doubt.

Happy birthday, Uncle Sam!
Not the happiness of ease;
Not the calm of summer seas,
But the deeper joy of pride
Born of knowledge, far and wide:
Loyal hearts, devoted, true,
Share the tasks that fall to you.

The First Step in Cultivating Fine Plants Is to Get Rid of Weeds.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

THERE was a time in America when a college diploma meant something worth while.

Colleges were few and poor, and men who attended them endured hardship and rigorous discipline for the sake of knowledge.

These became the ablest men in America and were responsible for the myth that colleges make men able and superior.

People overlooked the obvious fact that college graduates were superior because superior men went to college.

As the years passed and wealth increased, colleges increased in number and the number of students multiplied, but the character and purpose of college men suffered little change.

In the time of our fathers, young men still went to college because they desired knowledge. And still the ablest men were college graduates because those who went to college were the ablest and most ambitious of young men.

This fact was overlooked by the statisticians when they began to compare the incomes of college graduates and less fortunate men. They proved by the records that a college man earns more money than a mere high school graduate, and nobody went behind the record to compare natural abilities and early environments.

The bare statistics were enough. A land where money-making is the chief end of man at once decided that all of its youngsters should go to college.

Go they do—rich and poor, brilliant and stupid, ambitious and indolent. And even yet the ability of the college-bred is above the average, for each student body contains a leaven of ambition and brilliance to raise the common level above mediocrity.

But only the few now attend college in serious quest of learning. Only the few have a capacity for knowledge.

The many attend because of parental insistence or because it is the thing to do or because of the legend that colleges can transform the vicious and the stupid into cultured gentlemen.

It is a great waste and folly. A four-year study of 49 colleges reveals the fact that the average senior knows less than the average freshman and has a less agile mind.

It is time to quit casting pearls.

It isn't fair to belittle heroes by selling medals to anybody who has the price.

The Persistent Pork Barrel.

Minneapolis Journal.

Clinging desperately to the public works pork barrel, the Democratic leaders in Congress are making a last-minute effort to meet the President's objections to other parts of the relief bill.

They have agreed in conference to split up the 300 million dollar relief fund, so that two-thirds of it shall be distributed among the States on the basis of population, while the other third is to be given over to the President to use as the actual needs of the situation may dictate.

Thus even in the matter of helping the States directly with their task of aiding the unemployed, the pork barrel principle is to persist as to two-thirds of the appropriation.

But if such a bill is finally submitted to the President, he can scarcely do other than interpose a veto. He is convinced, and rightly, that any great expenditure of the taxpayers' money at this time on unnecessary and not self liquidating public works would be a grave blunder of the first dimension. Having declared that this country can not squander itself into prosperity, the President is bound to stand by his convictions; even if it prolongs the session of a singularly inept and disaster-working Congress.

Borah's Bolt.

Christian Science Monitor.

Mr. Borah's campaigning was a big factor in electing President Hoover in 1928. But now Mr. Hoover's record of three years in the White House has been made and his program for the immediate future has been fairly well promulgated. Whether he stands or falls will depend more upon how the people at large respond to that record and program than upon whether certain leaders are for him or only passive toward his candidacy.

Help From the Enemy.

Portland Press-Herald.

The President owes more to the Democratic party than he does to his own. So far the Democrats have done their best to help him get reelected.

The Assault on the Budget.

New York Journal of Commerce.

It is doubtful whether the taxpayers of the country realize as yet the extent to which House and Senate have betrayed the confidence reposed in them by thus voting to spend hundreds of millions of public funds for nonproductive public works. When the tax bill was under discussion, the country was told that the sacrifices entailed by the imposition of the more than $1,000,000,000 in new revenue had to be paid to prevent continuance of a policy of deficit financiering that would mean progressive deterioration of Federal credit, increasing costs of public financiering and steadily declining values for outstanding public issues. Unfortunately, the country will be spared none of these painful experiences if Congress insists upon using the taxpayers' new contributions to cover deficits on ordinary account and then proceeds to vote extraordinary outlays for nonproductive purposes, to be met by borrowing.

The wasteful character of the outlays and the limited amount of employment that would be made available by bond issues of this type are also cited by the President. The $300,000,000 loan advances to States carried in the Wagner bill likewise comes in for a measure of richly deserved criticism because it apportions loans among the States on the basis of population instead of according to need. The major count in the President's indictment of the pork barrel features of the House and Senate bills is the statement that these proposals are a disguised impairment of budgetary balance.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Today Is 100th Anniversary of "America;" First Publicly Sung on July 4, 1832, It Is Recalled.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: July 4, 1932, will be the 100th birthday of "America." It was on July 4, 1832, that it was first publicly sung, the occasion being a children's celebration at the Park Street Church, Boston. Though not officially the national anthem, it is unquestionably the most widely popular and the most easily rendered patriotic song of the American people.

"America" was written by the Rev. Dr. Samuel Francis Smith, Baptist clergyman, teacher, editor and poet. Born at Boston, October 21, 1808, he was but 24 years of age when he fashioned the verses which confer immortality upon his name.

He attended the Boston Latin School and was graduated from Harvard in the celebrated class of 1829, a fellow graduate of Oliver Wendell Holmes. The latter in his poem, "The Boys," referred to his friend as one whom fate had vainly tried to conceal by naming him Smith.

He also was graduated from Andover Theological Seminary. Ordained at Waterville, Maine, he held various pastorates from 1834 to 1854 and served as professor of modern languages at Waterville College, now Colby University, from 1834 to 1842, and as editor of the Christian Review from 1842 to 1848.

Dr. Smith was editor of the publications of the Baptist Missionary Union from 1854 to 1866. In this connection he visited the principal missions of Europe and Asia, 1875-1876 and 1880-1882. He received the degree of D.D. from Waterville in 1854.

His poetical compositions included the well-known hymn, "The Morning Light Is Breaking." His publications were "Lyric Gems," 1843; "The Psalmist," 1843; "Life of Rev. Joseph Grafton," 1848; "History of Newton, Mass.," 1880; "Rambles in Mission Fields," 1884, &c.

Dr. Smith's life was filled to the brim with honorable service to religious and educational causes. He died at Boston, November 16, 1895.

Federal Control of Hunting Regulations Is Essential to the Preservation of Wild Life in the United States.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am informed from Washington that great pressure is now being brought upon Secretary Hyde to induce or compel him to leave to individual State option all hunting regulations about open seasons and rest days for killing ducks and geese and all baiting and live decoy regulations. These issues will probably be decided next week. All local option demands, from States of waterfowl concentration, should immediately and strongly be denounced and opposed by every honest friend of game and sport. Their success would be most calamitous and a gross wrong to the duckless States.

It is a deplorable fact often published, that fourteen States can not be trusted to stand firmly against the demands of greedy sportsmen and give the United States game a square deal. Federal control of the killing or the not killing of Federal game is absolutely essential to sound conservation. In State control lies quick extermination.

Billboards That Line Costly Highways Should Be Taxed to Help Pay Upkeep of Highways.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A member of the Virginia Legislature introduced a bill to tax billboards, but it was defeated on the first reading. However, this does not mean that it was consigned to the scrap heap. The day is probably not far distant when Virginia as well as other States will realize that roadside billboards present a legitimate and very profitable source of income. Why shouldn't this be the case? The State provides the roads on which the billboards are placed as an advertising medium to passing motorists. Billboards are not found on deserted highways nor in remote valleys. They line the costly highways, and enjoy a special privilege that is paid for by the people of the States.

Billboard owners should help pay for the upkeep of roads that are lined with their advertising matter.

Sobriety Must Be Maintained by All Airplane Passengers for Safety of Others.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: At Washington-Hoover Airport last week there was an incident to which I wish to call attention. A woman was arrested on a charge of drunkenness. She had been a passenger in a Ludington Line plane from Norfolk. "Shortly after the plane took off" says the press report, she became hysterical "and raced up and down the aisle of the ship and began tearing the clothes from a fellow-passenger." Some of the passengers "volunteered to hold the woman in her seat" until the pilot could reach Washington. Of course, the trip was a great success, and "a good time was had by all."

A drunken person in an airplane endangers the lives of everybody on the ship. If aviation is to prosper, passengers and pilots must be sober.

Timely Suggestion on Keeping Rooms and Offices Cool During Hot Weather.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Now that warm weather is here, it may be of interest to the readers of The Post to know a secret highly conducive to comfort. Keep your windows closed and your blinds drawn during the sunlit hours of the day. Your house or office will be much cooler. Try it.

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

An Overdose of Sunshine Harmful to Skin and Hair.

CAME summer, sneaking up on us, and I wonder how many will take an overdose of sunshine, just as so many foolish girls did last summer and the year before. It's another case of an old story ever new and repeated. Like everything else that is good in proper doses, sunshine is very beneficial; but an overdose may bring discomfort and even disaster.

Like the little boy who was told that one pill would relieve his tummy ache and in his anxiety to get rid of the pain swallowed the entire box (only to have his troubles augmented) so it is with sunshine. Nobody can deny that sunshine is life-giving; the rays beating down on the skin are healthful, cause a tingling activity of circulation, awaken sluggish cells and make them function properly. The perspiration and oil glands function more freely and the pores throw out impurities more rapidly. In direct contact with the body and in proper doses the violet rays of the sun are stimulating and even healing, but in overdoses—what have you? Need you be told?

Start With Short Periods.

You know how human it is, after a grand swim, to loll on the beach for hours in the sun's direct rays. Our bodies are penetrated by larger doses of powerful light than we can endure. Blisters, burns, seared skins, swollen, even painful flesh—I've known an ambitious attempt of a grand tan in a single day to mean illness, a few days in bed, and perhaps a doctor.

Please, oh please don't be foolish; but do take your sun baths gradually and in small doses. This is especially important for those who have been confined indoors for approximately ten months of the year and have only a short vacation period for such outings. The skin which has been protected and sheltered for a long time can not stand sudden, drastic sunbaths. The sun can coarsen the skin to such an extent that no amount of treatment will ever restore it to its former delicate, smooth and fine texture.

Brittle, Bleached Hair.

As for the sun's effect on the hair—here again an overdose is harmful. Every beauty specialist will agree that it is an excellent thing for hair and scalp to get the wind and air blowing through it and the sun shining down, but not to excess. An overdose may mean a dried out, brittle quality to the hair, and a bad bleach of several different shades, and a lot of remedial care may be necessary to restore the hair to its naturel color. Hats off to beautiful, glossy, well-kept hair; but to preserve all its loveliness, better wear a beach hat or a bandanna or hide under a parasol while at the beach.

If you want my hair bulletins, or any skin bulletins, send stamped, self-addressed envelope, and presto the information is yours!

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

A draped negligee for the woman of classical proportions, made of a heavy crepe, lined in a contrasting color. (A Dah-ray design.)

NEW YORK, July 3.—Large women can be so majestic—women of noble proportions should be noble in everything—bearing, gesture, character. And they can be, too.

Fat? What is fat? Do you call the Venus de Milo—fat? Well, if you do! Her mature figure in all its nobility of proportions and pose is the perfect model for the large woman to pattern after, I think.

Of course, if you would rather slouch and slump, diet to the detriment of your health, tissues and complexion, eat like a horse one day and not eat again for two days, why go ahead.

But if you would have the character to accept your size as a fact, to acquire the pose, poise and carriage that enhance it, to wear the kind of clothes that give you majesty, then you can be sure of being really somebody in the scheme of things.

I designed a negligee for Sister Dionne, who has been naughty and tried to diet away pounds and pounds which weren't fat at all, but build, and got herself do-o-o-o-wn. The negligee, revived her—there it is sketched for you today. She wears it over a satin slip, of course, or over her nightgown. It is triangular, and heavy, the negligee, and the tassels which weigh down the drapes are heavier yet. The girdle fastens with hooks, instead of tying.

And she can't help but stand majestically, pose and garment giving something to the woman within, dressed or draped, rather, in this!

We tried and tried, and experimented and experimented to find out how to make a telephone book cover that would really hold the telephone book, and yet be artistic and not too hard to make. Finally we found some ideas, and then made you a leaflet telling you how to go about making this or that book cover for your own telephone volumes. So you can send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for the illustrated leaflet which tells you how to make a telephone book cover, and see for yourself if it isn't simply the best leaflet of the year. And easy to make. And artistic. And a gorgeous gift for a man—Christmas does come, you know.

The Beauty Sorceress.

"And how is the voice today, my dear?"

"Ah, in the stress of things, and what stress and what things, I have just a little forgotten about it!"

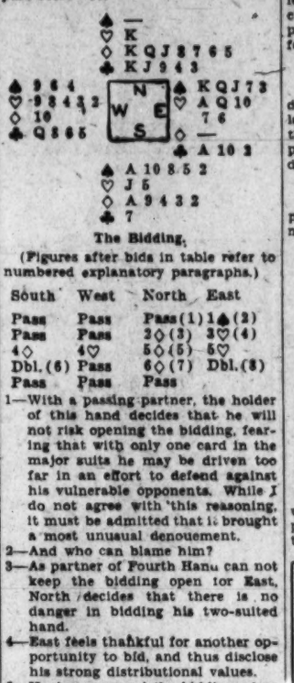
AN UNEXPECTED SLAM.

WHEN both partners pass their first opportunity to bid, and the bidding is opened by Fourth Hand, it may be taken as an accepted fact that neither player anticipates the bidding and making of a Small Slam to be the outcome of the hand. However, in Bridge as in life, the unexpected does happen with unusual frequency, as the hand below, played recently in a Rubber game at the Nelson Club in New York City, vividly illustrates.

South—Dealer.

Both sides vulnerable; East-West part-score—60.



The Bidding.

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	Pass(1)	1♠(2)
Pass	Pass	2◇(3)	3♡(4)
4◇	4♡	5◇(5)	5♡
Dbl.(6)	Pass	6◇(7)	Dbl.(8)
Pass	Pass	Pass

1—With a passing partner, the holder of this hand decides that he will not risk opening the bidding, fearing that with only one card in the major suits he may be driven too far in an effort to defend against his vulnerable opponents. While I do not agree with this reasoning, it must be admitted that it brought a most unusual denouement.

2—And who can blame him?

3—As partner of Fourth Hand can not keep the bidding open for East, North decides that there is no danger in bidding his two-suited hand.

4—East feels thankful for another opportunity to bid, and thus discloses his strong distributional values.

5—Having reopened the bidding when the contract could have been played in one spade, North feels compelled to defend.

7—North, with his unbalanced distribution, fears the outcome.

8—Again, who can blame him?

The holder of the North hand was Mr. H. T. Meldrum, who has long been identified with the Nelson Club. Against his unexpected Slam contract, East opened the spade King, fearing that a heart might be ruffed, in view of the fact that his partner had supported that suit. This was won with the Ace in Dummy, and the heart King discarded in the closed hand, leaving North with only one loser, a club. He thus had the unusual experience of making a Slam bid defensively.

TODAY'S POINTER.

The favors of fate, due to freak distributions, sometimes make worthless strong honor holdings. When the bidding discloses freak holdings, players should be careful about doubling even high contracts.

TOMORROW'S HAND.

The bidding and play of the hand printed below will be discussed tomorrow:

South—Dealer.

Neither side vulnerable.

Study the hand, decide how you would bid and play it, and then compare the results you obtain with those shown in tomorrow's article.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED.

Mr. Culbertson will be glad to answer questions on bidding and play of hands sent in by readers. Address him in care of The Washington Post, inclosing a 2-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope.

WHY MILK IS NEEDED IN ECONOMICAL DIET.

(Bureau of Dairy Industry, Department of Agriculture.)

MILK; grain foods; fruits and vegetables to supply vitamins and minerals. This is the basis for a balanced diet at any cost level, with variations and accessories as the pocketbook permits. When a good variety of foods is possible, the nutrients supplied by milk may be obtained in different ways, although some milk is always needed. When funds are limited, milk increases in importance because it furnishes more kinds of nutrients than any other one food, and enables us to get along if necessary with less of some foods, although we might like to have them. In other words, say nutrition specialists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, the diet that is lacking in variety should include plenty of milk, from which protein, minerals (chiefly calcium and phosphorus) and some of the vitamins, are obtained.

Perhaps you always think of milk as milk to drink, forgetting that it can be cooked in a great many dishes—in cereals, soups, sauces, and puddings. Milk in these forms counts in the day's ration. Again, you may not realize that "milk in the diet" means all kinds of milk—evaporated and dried milk as well as fresh whole milk. A tall can of evaporated milk, diluted with an equal quantity of water, is equivalent in food value to a quart of fresh pasteurized milk. A cup of dried skim milk powder and a quart of water make a reconstituted fluid milk slightly richer in solids than fresh skim milk.

Canned evaporated milk is whole milk concentrated to half its original bulk, and may be cheaper than fresh milk. It can be used instead of fresh milk, especially in cooking, and since it can be kept indefinitely until opened, it is both convenient and economical where fresh milk can not be had.

Dried milk, or milk powder, is made from whole milk, from skim milk, or partially skimmed milk. It is sold at retail under several trade names. Dried skim milk is the cheapest form, and when obtained at less than 15 cents a pound provides fluid skim milk at 3 cents a quart or less. Sometimes the powder can be bought from bakers or ice cream makers. Clubs and committees, when fresh milk is not easily obtainable, also buy dried milk to advantage by the barrel or sack.

Of course, the addition of milk increases the food value of foods with which it is cooked. Cornmeal mush, oatmeal, cracked whole wheat, brown rice, hominy or hominy grits—all these are much improved both in food value and in flavor by being cooked with milk. For this purpose, evaporated or dried skim milk can be used instead of fresh. The same is true of vegetables and puddings, and because the milk is sure to be served with the vegetables in the form of sauce, the maximum mineral and vitamin value of both milk and vegetables are retained. Potatoes escalloped in milk, kale panned with milk, cabbage cooked in milk, onions or summer squash served with milk, have a delicate flavor and a high food value whether the milk is fresh, evaporated or dried.

The cream of vegetable soup given below is a good illustration of this. It can be made with milk in any form. Use 1½ cups of dried skim-milk powder with 3 pints of water to make the amount of liquid in the recipe, or 1½ tall cans of evaporated milk.

Cream of Vegetable Soup.

½ cup finely chopped carrots
¼ cup finely chopped onion
¼ cup finely chopped celery or celery tops
4 tablespoons fat
1½ tablespoons flour
3 pints milk
1 teaspoon salt

Cook the finely chopped vegetables in the fat for 10 minutes with constant stirring, add the flour and continue to stir until well blended. In the meantime heat the milk (fresh or reconstituted) in a double boiler, add a little of it to the vegetable mixture, stir well, combine with the rest of the milk, add the salt and cook for 10 minutes. The flavor is improved if the soup is allowed to stand for a short time to blend before serving. Reheat and serve.

Cornmeal Mush.

1 quart of milk made of 1 cup skim milk powder and 1 quart water
1 cup cornmeal
1½ teaspoons salt

Scald the reconstituted milk over a direct flame. Mix the salt with the cornmeal and sprinkle very slowly into the hot milk, stirring constantly while it thickens. Place over boiling water and continue cooking ¾ hour or longer. If the cornmeal is to be used for frying, pour while hot into a moistened bread pan and put in a cold place until firm. For frying, cut the mush in slices, sprinkle lightly with flour and fry slowly until a golden brown on both sides. Serve hot with jelly or syrup.

Pennsylvania Establishes Low Accident Record

Harrisburg, Pa. (U.P.).—The Pennsylvania bituminous coal industry established a new all-time record low mark for accidents during May, the Department of Mines reported.

Six workmen were killed during the month in the production of 5,860,000 tons of soft coal, an average production of 976,000 tons per fatality.

The anthracite record of twelve fatal accidents, one for every 263,000 tons produced, was also a new record accident low.

British Tug Hunts Ship Lost in Race

Consul at Bermuda Asks United Search for New York Craft.

Hamilton, Bermuda, July 3 (U.P.).—The British naval tug Sandboy tonight was searching the Gulf Stream for the New York ketch Curlew, which started with 26 other yachts, a week ago Saturday, on the annual race from New London, Conn., to Bermuda, and failed to arrive.

The Sandboy also has been instructed to search for the Bermuda sloop Spanish Rose which was not entered in the race, but which was accompanying the contestants on the voyage.

Graham Kemper, American consul, today wired the State Department at Washington, asking that the United States Coast Guard take up the search. A general broadcast has requested all ships at sea to keep a lookout for the missing boats. The Curlew carries a crew of nine, and the Spanish Rose, seven.

Atoms Will "Pose" At 400 Below Zero

Refrigerator to Be Built at Princeton University for Science Pictures.

Princeton, N. J., July 3 (A.P.).—A scientific refrigerator 400 degrees Fahrenheit below zero will be set up at Princeton University, it was announced tonight. Within it at temperatures close to the absolute zero, which scientists suspect means death of all matter, atoms will be chilled to make them stand almost still for taking their X-ray spectroscopic pictures.

This is part of an attack on the atom planned by Princeton's new physics head, Prof. Rudolph Ladensburg, distinguished German.

Liquid hydrogen will cool the refrigerator. In it the X-rays will photograph crystals of metal and minerals. The intense chill is expected to quiet down and "pose" the atoms of each crystal.

Charcot Leaves France On Arctic Expedition

St. Malo, France, July 3 (U.P.).—Dr. Jean Charcot's expedition to the Polar regions sailed today on the research ship Pourquoi Pas to spend a year at Scoresby Sound, Greenland, as the French contribution to the Polar year of 1932-33. The ship, a three-master vessel, will join the ice breaker Pollux at the Faroe Islands.

The two vessels will have stores for six months and, after landing the scientists at Scoresby Sound, they will engage in separate oceanographic studies in Arctic waters before returning to France in mid-September.

Freighter Picks Up Man And Son Adrift on Lake

Buffalo, N. Y., July 3 (A.P.).—A lake freighter today brought to Buffalo a Detroit man and his young son who had been picked up in Lake Erie after having been adrift in a rowboat several hours.

Harvey C. Langtry and his son, William, 5, set out from Estral Bay Beach, near Newport, Mich., Saturday. Their boat, as a result of a high wind, became unmanageable and it was buffeted about on the lake until 3 a. m. yesterday, when the freighter sighted the pair and effected a rescue.

Longer Open Season On Ducks Requested

With the drought cycle of duck breeding areas at an end in the United States and Canada, the Bureau of Biological Survey will recommend to the Secretary of Agriculture and President Hoover that the duck and goose shooting period be extended two weeks or a month beyond the customary period.

The request will be made Friday at a meeting of the bureau's advisory board, composed of outstanding conservationists from all parts of the country.

How to Keep Well

LACTIC ACID MILK POWDER.

IN Great Britain the local health departments distribute a good deal of milk for baby feeding, to be used in homes where breast feeding is not possible and where the finances of the family are too low to pay for milk for the baby.

The heads of the departments are given choice between liquid, dried and some other prepared milks. The number who express a preference for dried milks, saying they get better results from it, is surprisingly large.

Recently Dr. J. H. Hess and associates reported on a prolonged baby feeding experiment in which they tried to decide how well babies thrived when fed for almost all of the first year of life on various prepared milks.

Making lactic acid milks in the home is not easy for some mothers, and various manufacturers have sought to help out by marketing sour milk preparations. Among these are several lactic acid milk powders. The investigation had especially in mind the wholesomeness of these powders when fed for a long time. The preparation of lactic acid milk solutions from these powders is very simple. Comparison included breast fed babies as well as those fed on dilutions of cow's milk made in the customary fashion, and with various other baby foods.

The observers noted the following points: Gain in weight; growth in stature and nutrition as judged by growth; relation of weight to stature; firmness of flesh; appearance; happiness and contentment; vomiting, colic, diarrheas and bowel movements; development of teeth; tetter and other skin troubles; infectious diseases; and rickets.

The general score of dried lactic milk was about as good as that made even by breast feeding. The children varied somewhat. Some did better than others, as is always the case, but the averages were about the same.

Babies have tastes as to their foods, and occasionally a baby did not like a modified form of milk and would carry his dislike to the point of refusal to partake.

As a rule babies have a sweet tooth even before they have any other kind. Because of this Dr. Hess and his associates used gluside rather frequently. They added one grain to each pint of milk. Gluside is sold in drug stores, as a rule, under its copyrighted name. It is sweet, being far sweeter than sugar, but it is not a carbohydrate and it has no food value. It is harmless except as catering to a sweet tooth is not always the best plan.

These babies took the usual accessory foods in the customary way. Cod liver oil was begun almost at the beginning of life. They started with ten drops twice daily. At 3 months of age a teaspoonful was given twice daily. Orange juice was started with the first visit. The beginning dose was one-half teaspoonful twice daily. At 3 months of age 1½ ounces twice daily was the average allowance. Cereal was started at 5 months of age. It was given twice daily. Vegetable soup was started at 7 months, and bananas were added to the diet at 9 months.

ERYSIPELAS.

J. W. writes:

A says that erysipelas is not contagious. B says it is very catching, that clothing and bed clothes must be sterilized, and that the patient must be isolated for a long time.

Who is right?

REPLY.

A is nearer right than B, though it is not a case where the pot can call the kettle black. In a proper setting, erysipelas is fairly contagious, otherwise it is practically not so. Instances of a proper setting are: An obstetric hospital, among wounded persons and women in childbirth.

What Today Means

"CANCER."

IF July 4 is your birthday the best hours for you on this date are from 8:30 a. m. to 10 a. m., from 2 p. m. to 3:20 p. m. and from 7 p. m. to 8:45 p. m. The danger periods are from 11:50 a. m. to 1 p. m. and from 9:30 p. m. to 10:35 p. m.

Very peaceful influences will prevail on July 4, and those who wish for a quiet and undisturbed time for work or study should find this an ideal anniversary. It would be a good time to solicit personal support for the promotion of some scheme or ambition. Fate will leave you with a free hand for most things, and in most instances will give you a helping one.

The child born on this July 4 will have a strong little character and will show much determination and "nerve." Obstinacy is shown, but when obedience has been developed it will merely denote strength and purpose. There will be a tendency to become too self-centered or too secretive.

There is nothing spectacular about your make-up, if born on July 4, although nature has not stinted in the number or kind of sterling qualities with which she endowed you. You have character, intelligence and ordinary common sense. You pride yourself on your self-reliance and would rather be an economic producer than an economic parasite. Your desire to "get on" in the world is deeper rooted than an egotistical satisfaction to "show off." You have clear purposes and know definitely what you most want to do or be. As you have a direct aim and a visible target, there is every reason to believe that you will reach your desired destination in life.

Your life, as is the history of the lives of millions of other men and women, is a history of loss and recovery. In the times of sorrow or disappointment you have the good sense to realize that your own experiences are not wholly different, and neither become bitter toward a seemingly unkind Providence or seek special sympathy for your hard lot. In your relations with people you seem to be unfortunate through bereavements, unavoidable separations and disloyalties. Your own affections are very deep and your loyalties very staunch. Most temporary slumps in your fortunes or happiness are usually succeeded by a revival—possibly a boom of good fortune. Your optimism is one of your greatest blessings.

Successful people born on July 4: Mrs. Lucy Scribner, philanthropist. William Farnum, film actor. Calvin Coolidge, ex-President of United States. Sophie Irene Loeb, social worker. George Cohan, actor manager.

Annapolis Motor Flow Accelerated

Trolley Schedule Slashed From 21 Cars Daily to 6 to Ferry.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., July 3.—Motor traffic moved through the streets of Annapolis more expeditiously today as officials of the Washington, Baltimore & Annapolis Electric Railroad curtailed operation of service through the city to a minimum, namely, six trains either way to make connections with steamers of the Claiborne-Annapolis Ferry Co. Under normal conditions, a mean average of 21 trains either way were operated daily.

It all comes about through the fact that the franchise granted the railroad 25 years ago, expired July 1, and the legal dispute over the issue ended in the United States District Court at Baltimore Thursday when Judge William C. Coleman ruled in favor of the city, but allowed the railroad 60 days in which to remove the tracks from the streets as required by the franchise privilege.

The six-train schedule is in line with a proposal made by the railroad several weeks ago as a move to obtain a new franchise and in order to render proper service to the ferry, but which was turned down by the city council.

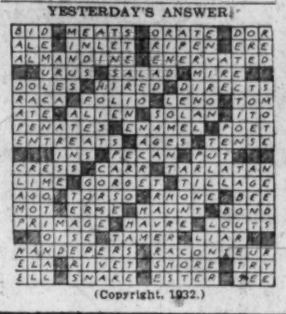
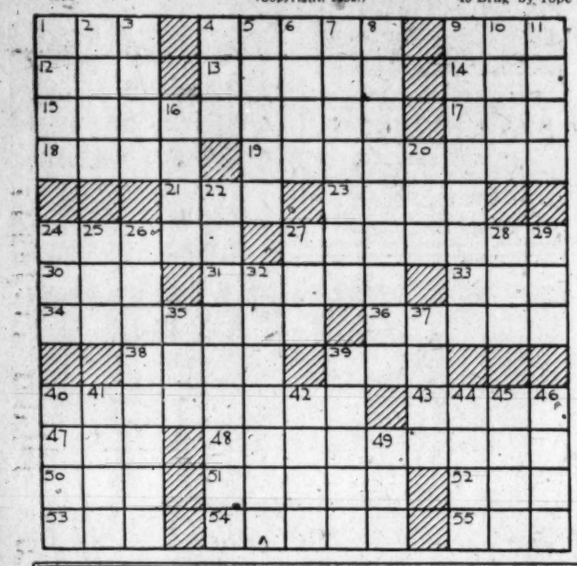
YESTERDAY'S ANSWER:



(Copyright, 1932.)



Radio Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

AN old-fashioned Fourth of July celebration, with everything from rousing band music to speech-making, will feature the observance of the great American holiday over the air. The only thing not offered is the red lemonade. There will be a parade of celebrities before the microphone from morning until late in the evening.

The Columbia network will present three patriotic programs from the Nation's Capital. The first will be in tribute to the American Legion (WMAL, 1:30 p. m.). An "Independence Day" address, to be delivered by Father Edmund Walsh, of Georgetown University, will feature the program. Military music will be furnished by the Army Band. The second program will be in behalf of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps with Frederick H. Payne, the Assistant Secretary of War, as speaker (WMAL, 3 p. m.).

The third program will be an address by Senator James E. Watson, of Indiana, on "Our Country—1932" (WMAL, 8 p. m.). This address, to be delivered at the Sylvan Theater, is in connection with the District of Columbia's annual Fourth of July celebration. The Marine Band will play during the program.

A PATRIOTIC address, will be delivered by George Gordon Battle, prominent New York attorney. He will discuss "Thomas Jefferson and James Monroe" (WRC, 4:45 p. m.).

A half-hour tribute will be paid to Stephen Foster (WRC, 2 p. m.) in commemoration of his birthday anniversary.

THE enterprise of the N. B. C. beating Columbia to it by broadcasting the arrival at the Chicago airport of Gov. Roosevelt to the convention itself, as well as the listening public was badly offset by the excited announcers. Instead of giving the listeners a chance to hear the arrival—which in itself was noisy and exciting enough—the announcers—Butterworth and Lyon—as they frequently did at critical times during the convention, began shouting into the microphone like madmen. It became such a bedlam, that, not being able to hear anybody but the announcers, we finally turned out in disgust.

David Lawrence, in announcing a subsequent important event took exactly the opposite tack. He lowered his voice, did not get excited, spoke infrequently, and gave the impression of one who was quietly letting you in on something behind the scenes. Likewise admirable was the technique of Fred Wile and Bill Hard. Whenever they spoke they said something. Wile and Hard rank with the best orators on Capitol Hill, but they knew when to keep quiet. Also they didn't shout into the microphone. At one time Lyon made so much noise that he drowned out a 45-piece kiltie band. Ted Husing also talked entirely too much.

LIKEWISE the chain announcers at Chicago didn't know politics and political notables. Where the chains fell down was in not sending trained Washington announcers to Chicago such as Provenson, of WRC, or Bell, of WMAL, who would have handled the routine announcing to the queen's taste.

Washington correspondents in the press section, who at the White House and the Capitol are in the most intimate touch with notables, and think nothing of it, must have smiled when Butterworth, the radio announcer, rushed to the microphone, so excited he could hardly talk, and bellowed forth to the world that he had just driven in from the Chicago airport "in the same car with Mayor Cermak and Gov. Roosevelt."

One of several notable speakers at the annual Independence Day banquet of the American Society in London will be Andrew W. Mellon, United States Ambassador to the Court of St. James. His address will be heard in Washington at 3:30 p. m. via WMAL.

NATS TUMBLE TO FIFTH PLACE AS MACKS WIN, 4-3

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

THE American League pennant race has reached the stage where some very illuminating figures may be applied. If the Yankees do no more than break even in their remaining games, the Nats must play at a .659 gait to tie for the pennant.

Today's double bill at Griffith Stadium provides the opportunity for the Nats to take a new lease on their hopes, and they will be entitled to a bit more serious consideration if they slap the Yankees down twice. If they don't, it will be no great surprise.

The last three games with Philadelphia, all lost by one run, nevertheless were encouraging. Thomas, Coffman and Crowder struck a winning gait at a time when the team's batting was taking a furlough.

The blame for yesterday's defeat can be traced to the errant fingers of Buddy Myer, who foozled an easy grounder in the first inning and it is not in the books for the Nats to lose on account of Myer's fielding. Be cut off at least a half dozen runs in the twin bill at Philadelphia, Saturday, but the Nats lost both games.

Tradition will probably bat .500 this season insofar as the theory that the team leading July 4 will be leading when the race is over. The Yankees are doing very well by tradition, but the National League is liable to do him wrong with only 9½ games separating the leaders and the cellar occupants and the lead having changed exactly 13 times thus far with every club in the league still in the running.

A new face appears in the American League with the acquisition of Outfielder George Fischer by the Browns. Fischer, who fields like a Volga Boatman, petrifies the pill on occasions and with the Cardinals two years ago compounded an impressive average of .374. He will be a valuable man if he lets in no more than twice as many runs as he drives in.

A telltale finger can be pointed to one of the reasons for the Nats' slump. Latest batting figures show the team flitting for .273 and in fifth place in this respect as well as in the won and lost standings. The Hitless Wonders of 1906 could win the pennant with that average but not the Nats of 1932.

The National League will see a great finish if the race simmers down to a battle between the Pirates and the Giants. The two clubs have met only once this season and must crowd six postponed games into the tag end of the campaign as a result of rain and cold weather that hit the schedule.

The suspicion grows that the Cardinals of 1931 could walk through the National League if President Sam Breadon had not been struck with his attack of philanthropitis which shipped the Cardinal stars to other clubs. Hafey is batting .359 for the Reds and that figure would look quite pleasant in the St. Louis line-up.

The recent improvement of the Boston Red Sox is a tribute to Marty McManus whose first move as the new manager was to take himself out of the line-up.

2 Net Upsets Mark D. C. Tourney

Charest Is Victim of O'Neill; Deck Puts Out Sendel.

Muehleisen and Hunt Each Win Three Matches.

SPRAYING a stream of chop-strokes over the net with netting regularity, Maurice O'Neill, beaming Irishman from the public courts, yesterday sprang one of the big surprises of the forty-fifth annual District of Columbia tennis championship at Wardman Park Hotel, when he defeated Clarence Charest, four times winner of the event and a potent netman despite his proximity to the half century mark. The score was 6—2, 6—4.

Pat Deck, one of the few tennis officials who play tennis, scored surprise No. 2 for the day, when he beat out Frederico Sendel, former Mexican Davis Cup player, 8—6, 6—1, while Dolf Muehleisen, California master, and first seeded player, romped over three opponents, beating T. O'Neill by default; Youngson Yen, 6—0, 6—2, and Harry Hill, 6—2, 6—1.

Hunt Also Triple Winner.

Muehleisen's feat was equalled by Gilbert Hunt, best of the local young players, who beat the District junior champion, Tom Moorhead, 6—0, 6—1; Muscoe Garnett, 6—0, 8—6, and Alan Staubly, 6—4, 7—5. Frank Shore was given a bitter battle by Bill Buchanan before winning, 6—4, 10—8, and Ensign McClung put out Bill Seidel, 8—6, 6—8, 6—3, in the longest match.

The doubles started yesterday without much happening. Today's schedule in both singles and doubles will bring out about the best tennis to be seen in any tournament here this year.

Baer Meets Levinsky Today in Reno Bout

Reno, Nev., July 3 (A.P.).—California Max Baer and King Levinsky, former fish peddler of Chicago, meet here tomorrow in a 20-round bout marking Reno's second annual Independence Day renewal of the long distance fights in vogue a quarter century ago.

The aspiring young rivals for heavyweight laurels will square off in the wooden arena Jack Dempsey built last year for the battle Baer lost to Paulino Uzcudun, Basque woodchopper.

It will be the second meeting of the pair. Baer scored a ten-round decision over Levinsky in New York last year. Since he also has the advantage of experience in 20-round matches, the 6-foot 3-inch Californian will go into the ring a slight favorite.

Sarazen Clips Course Mark in Akron Match

Akron, Ohio, July 3 (A.P.).—Gene Sarazen, the American and British open golf champion, today shot a 34—32—66 over the municipal course, establishing a new course record and shattering par by four strokes.

Sarazen was paired with Lew Waldron, of Brookside Country Club, in a best ball exhibition. Their card was 33—32—65, Waldron posting a 72. Tommy Armour, the former American and British title holder, and Ernie Shave, municipal pro, were no match for the Sarazen-Waldron combination. Shave carded a 73 and Armour a 72.

Desjardins Thrills In Diving Exhibition

Pete Desjardins, rated the best diver ever developed in America, gave his first local exhibition yesterday at Wardman Park Hotel pool before several hundred local swimming enthusiasts, who cheered the flawless diving of the Olympic champion to an echo.

Desjardins showed more diving yesterday afternoon during an hour than perhaps has been seen here in ten years. He performed every difficult test in the form book, and added many gyrations of his own invention. His full twist, one and one-half gainer, held the most difficult dive known, drew the greatest round of applause.

Onalene Lawrence, Phil Bateson and other well-known District A. A. U. aquatic figures also performed. The exhibitions included an egg and spoon race which afforded much amusement, and a comic diving act by Desjardins.

District 10-Mile Marathon Crown Draws Stars Today

Takoma Playground Finish of A. A. U. Championship.

WITH Bill Agee, stellar Baltimore runner, ready to defend the honors he has won the last three years, a field of long-distance runners from seven States and the District of Columbia will compete today in the 10-mile District of Columbia marathon that begins on the Mount Vernon Boulevard and ends on Takoma Park Playground, Fourth and Whittier street northwest. Starter Col. Hialmar Ericson will fire the gun at 1:30 o'clock.

The marathon features a program sponsored by the Department of Playgrounds in conjunction with the citizens of Takoma Park. It is listed as a George Washington Bicentennial event. The course of the run is printed elsewhere on this page.

Twenty-four of the finishers will be awarded trophies donated by the Department of Playgrounds, Takoma Park Citizens Association, the Washington Fourth of July, celebration committee, the District of Columbia Association of the A. A. U., and the Evening Star.

The first man to finish will receive the Evening Star Cup and a gold Fourth of July medal. The next three will get gold medals. To the fifth and sixth finishers will go Takoma Park silver medals, and to the seventh to tenth runners will be presented silver Fourth of July medals.

A. A. U. medals will be awarded the first, second and third Washington runners to cross the line. A playground trophy will be the prize of the first local three-man team finishing. Another trophy donated by the Department of Playgrounds is to be the property of the winning three-man team. Finishers from 11 to 20 will receive bronze Takoma Park medals while those in places 21 to 24 will win bronze Fourth of July prizes.

Miss Sibyl Baker, supervisor of the Department of Playgrounds, has reserved seats on the Monument Grounds for those competitors who wish to view the fireworks display tonight. Application for the tickets should be made at the Takoma Park playground.

Dr. Luther B. Reichelderfer, president of the Board of Commissioners, has been chosen as honorary referee. The active referee is Richard S. Tennyson, assistant supervisor of playgrounds. Harry G. Helme will serve as clerk of the course, while Winfree Johnson will be chief judge, and Ralph E. Gould, chief timer.

ROUTE OF RACE

The race will begin from about 150 yards past the railroad bridge on the Mount Vernon highway. The field will trek along the new highway to the Memorial Bridge, across the bridge and around the Lincoln Memorial and out Twenty-second street. The field turns right at Constitution avenue to Fifteenth street and up Fifteenth street to New York avenue, to the left to Thirteenth and H streets and up Thirteenth street to Logan Circle, out Vermont avenue to Florida avenue and Sherman avenue. Right on Sherman avenue to New Hampshire avenue. Right on New Hampshire avenue to Georgia avenue. Left on Georgia avenue to Whittier street. Right on Whittier street to the Takoma Park Playgrounds.

Harvey Wins Tribal Bowl; Other Capital Golf Results

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

ON the eve of the national holiday, despite the fact that a large number of golfers were away on out-of-town trips, the courses of the local clubs were crowded yesterday and events were scheduled which drew out a large field.

The largest gallery followed the 36-hole match at the Indian Spring Club which determined the winner of the Tribal Bowl contest. The contestants in the final round were Thomas M. Belshe, the club champion, and J. William Harvey, jr., the latter finally winning, 4 and 3. At the end of the first nine the match was all even, but Harvey forged ahead and climaxing the first eighteen by sinking a 15-foot putt for a birdie 3 on the final hole, was 4 up. He held this lead throughout the second round, Belshe having trouble with his tee shots and also having no less than seven three-putt greens. Harvey's medal score was 74—77, as against 78—80 for Belshe.

The members of the Indian Spring Club will compete today in a flag tournament while the women players will conclude a "ringer" tournament which has been in progress since Saturday.

An exhibition match on the course of the Kenwood Club yesterday between A. L. Houghton, the club professional, and Walter Cunningham, Burning Tree, paired against George Diffenbaugh, Indian Spring, and Mel Shorey, East Potomac Park, resulted in a victory for the first-named pair, 1 up.

The feature of the match was the fact that Houghton tied the record for the second nine, made in the National Open tournament last fall, when Willie Macfarlane, the winner of the event, scored 33. Houghton yesterday played the second nine in the same figures, as follows: 335, 444, 334—33. The match was so well played that only one hole, the tenth, was halved in a par, Houghton driving the green and holing out in two putts. Houghton led the quartet with 71; Diffenbaugh was 76 and Shorey and Cunningham each had 76.

Dr. Ben Johnson and Maj. H. G. Dagley are the semifinalists in the Bicentennial championship on the course of the Congressional Country Club who will play this morning with M. Parker Nolan and Melville Bennett, the club's junior champion, paired against each other in the lower bracket. The matches yesterday resulted as follows:

First sixteen—First round, J. A. Maloney defeated Joseph O'Hare, 3 and 2; Dr. Ben Johnson defeated J. C. Bailey, 2 and 1; Franklin N. Parke defeated Dr. R. A. Kelly, 4 and 3; Maj. H. G. Dagley defeated B. M. Weigle, 5 and 4; J. F. McCarron defeated A. C. Williams, 5 and 4; M. Parker Nolan defeated William J. McKoy, 6 and 5; Melvin Bennett defeated M. Mahorner, 6 and 5; H. J. Richardson defeated C. G. Stewart, 6 and 3.

Second round—Johnson defeated Maloney, 3 and 2; Dagley defeated Parke, 1 up, 19 holes; Nolan defeated McCarron, 3 and 2; Bennett defeated Richardson, 3 and 2.

Second sixteen—First round, Joseph E. Murphy defeated Dr. Bruce L. Taylor, 3 and 2; H. A. Grant defeated H. N. Moffitt, 2 and 1; E. J. Goode defeated F. M. Kerby, 1 up; L. A. Reeves defeated J. F. Dailey, 5 and 4; A. J. Walker defeated E. D. Lyon, 3 and 1; F. C. Cromwell defeated Dr. J. L. Barnhart, 1 up, 19 holes; T. L. Moorman defeated William E. Shea, 1 up; G. C. Lightbown, jr., defeated A. W. Henderson, 3 and 2.

Second round—Murphy defeated Grant, 3 and 2; Reeves defeated Goode and Walker defeated Cromwell, 2 and 1; Moorman defeated Lightbown, 1 up.

Third sixteen—First round, J. J. Marquette defeated Youngquist, 4 and 3; P. G. Awalt defeated bye; G. C. Lightbown defeated Charles Denny, 1 up; William Montgomery defeated bye; E. S. Dechune defeated H. E. Davis, 3 and 2; John Meany defeated bye; Guy Mason defeated bye; James F. Meegan defeated bye.

Second round—Marquette defeated Awalt, 1 up; Lightbown defeated Montgomery by default; Dechune defeated Meany by default; Meegan defeated Mason, 3 and 2.

The feature of the matches yesterday was the remarkable score of young Bennett. Out in 41, playing against Henry J. Richardson, he was 1 down at the turn but he played the second nine in 33 strokes, as follows: 748 343 333—33. His 7 on the tenth hole was due to an encounter with the ditch on his second shot but after scoring an eagle 3 on the thirteenth, against Richardson's birdie 4, he finished the last four holes in consecutive birdies.

A blind bogey contest was on the program yesterday at the Beaver Dam Club. For the first lucky number, 78, there was a tie between D. E. Mattison and J. T. Strong. The second lucky number was 79 with a quadruple tie between William H. White, D. M. Pratt, G. E. Bonesteel and W. T. Henderson. The Scotch foursome between Mrs. D. E. Mattison and Cliff Spencer, club professional, paired against Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Hussey, resulted in a victory for the former, 2 and 1. Incidentally, Spencer played the course in 73, coming within one stroke of tying the course record, 72.

Detroit, July 3 (A.P.).—Detroit dropped to third place in the American League standing today when Cleveland took a 7-to-4 decision in a series final played in a drizzling rain.

Cissell and Averill blasted out home runs in the fourth inning. Averill's blow scoring Burnett as well. Gehringer hit for the circuit for Detroit in the eighth with Davis on base.

Clint Brown went the route for Cleveland, but George Uhle, Tiger starting pitcher, was succeeded in the sixth by Truett Sewell, who in turn gave way to Ouck Marrow, also a recruit, in the ninth.

Rain Halts Game in 6th; Pat Malone Is Pounded.

Brown, Braves' Star, Defeated in Duel by Giants.

CHICAGO, July 3 (A.P.).—Pittsburgh took the lead in the National League today by winning a six-inning game from the Chicago Cubs, 5 to 4. A double-header was scheduled, but a drizzling rain that suddenly became a heavy shower, ended matters after six innings of the opener. The teams departed for Pittsburgh to renew their battle in two games tomorrow.

Pat Malone was knocked from the mound in the fourth inning and Jakie May held the Pirates from then on while the Cubs battered Meine for three runs in the fifth and sixth.

The rain then forced a halt and after an hour of waiting it was found impossible to continue.

Carl Hubbell's pitching gave the Giants a win over the Braves, 5 to 2. The Giants piled up an early lead at the expense of Bob Brown, Brave rookie right-hander.

In other National League games, the Phils nosed out the Dodgers, 4 to 3, in eleven innings; the Giants downed the Braves, 5 to 2, and the Reds took a close one from the Cards, 4 to 3.

AN Independence Day pyrotechnical display is promised at Griffith Stadium this afternoon, starting at 1:30, when the New York Yankees and Nationals meet in a holiday double-header, which is expected to tax the seating capacity of the park. "Prof." Monte Weaver and Lefty Lloyd Brown are slated to do the flinging for the home crew, with Vernon Gomez and John Allen expected to toil on the mound for "Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig & Company." Gomez will be seeking his fifteenth victory. Both he and Allen have lost but one game this season, and, oddly enough, the Washington Club plastered the'

REGARDLESS of age, boys will be boys. Yesterday Mr. "Lefty" Stevens and his Federal Storage playmates went down to the Eclipse Field with a package of firecrackers intended for use in their game with the league-leading Columbia Heights team. But Columbia Heights came well prepared with its own collection of cannon crackers, and to the dismay of its opponents lighted the first one. It produced four runs in the first inning, completely demoralized the Federals and started the Heightsmen off to their sixth consecutive victory in section B, unlimited division of The Post's Capital City League. The final score was 13-6.

The winners now have a firm grip on the leadership, while the Storage team drops to third place. In the only other game played in this division Diamond Cab came from behind to nose out the Franc Jewelers, 7-6.

In section A the leading Dixie Pigs celebrated the Fourth a bit prematurely, abeit successfully, by banging out twenty runs to gain a victory over Congress Heights which was able to score only three. The Union Printers made merry at the expense of City Cab, winning, 14-7, in a game featured by the prodigious clouting of both teams to round out the schedule in this section.

Diamond Cab saved its energy until the eighth inning when, six runs behind, it called its heavy artillery into action. The boys responded in noble style, driving over seven runs to cop the verdict. Hardwick and Waller were prominent in the winning attack. Jarvis, Beall and Irving were best for the Jewelers.

"Sy" Simmons knocked one of Frank Corkins' slants out of the lot, or nearly out, for a homer as the Union Printers swept to victory over City Cab.

JOE AND ASBESTOS

(Watch Sunday's Post for New Secret Code) —By Ken Kling

EXTRA! EXTRA! Bank roll went over the $60 mark Saturday when Crowning Glory won by eight lengths and he was not the favorite. Asbestos made $7.50 and his bank roll is now $60.12. The code horse ran second, beaten a lip. To date, code shows $16 profit and Joe's handicap shows $258.00.

AT THE POST
with Bill Bennings

DEAR AL: ARLINGTON PARK, CHICAGO, JULY 3.

Spent the week-end trying to forget those noses and necks that made Saturday a rather dull day for us. But here's a brand new week and a different card. Rained here this afternoon and looks like the track will be at least slow tomorrow. Chief interest is centered in the Stars and Stripes Handicap. Equipoise should pick up the big chunk in this race which probably will gross over $30,000.

Here's the other track specials for tomorrow—Microphone, Spinach, Our Grief, Captain Joy, Bokie B., Brandon Rose. BILL.

FIRST RACE—MAROONED makes his first start in this sector after showing to advantage in New York. Defeated a field as good as this, but was disqualified. Was second in two other races. Believe he will have CHARLEY O., one that finished second in his only outing, to beat. Workman and REDRESS may hold the third money safe.

SECOND RACE—WISE ADVOCATE is a bear at this distance. There's little difference in weight between the contenders. Fronk is likely to ride. I expect the players to make WAYLAYER the favorite after that last triumph. SEVEN VEILS can show here.

THIRD RACE — WISE ANNE, five times a winner and twice second in seven starts, has to be placed on top of this field. This miss has plenty of speed and a good post position. This is another Fronk probably will ride. MISS PURRAY has become a star since she won in the field at Pimlico, and should take care of the place ahead of HILENA.

FOURTH RACE—EVERGOLD is one that I will endeavor to bring home ahead of PAIRBYPAIR. Came through with a brilliant race that last time out. PAIRBYPAIR, the likely favorite, has a neat sprint under his belt. SPRINGSTEEL may be the one to upset these, especially with Leischman up.

FIFTH RACE — EQUIPOISE and Workman are making good in the fashion I predicted after this pair staged that comeback at Bowie last spring. I believe the C. V. Whitney star can handle that 129-pound package successfully here. JAMESTOWN looks like the one to threaten. DR. FREELAND for third, especially since it rained today.

SIXTH RACE—BOB ROGERS, in view of the fact that the track may be slow tomorrow, is placed on top here. An old campaigner who hasn't been out since last season, this one has worked well and appears to have retained his brilliant speed of last year. Across the board, at track odds (if you can get them) is the recommendation. LADRONE and DON TASKER for the other two notches.

SEVENTH RACE — PORTCODINE hasn't run a truly bad race this season in nine starts. Meets tough ones here, I'll admit, but I figure the son of The Porter capable of taking these in camp. Slow going will not hurt his chances. WILLIAM T. and TOTEM to fight it out for the remainder.

POLISH NINE IN JUNIOR RUNNING

Has a Chance to Tie Georgetown for 1st Half Lead.

GEORGETOWN concluded its campaign for the first half title in the junior division of The Post's Capital City League yesterday by winning over Wheeler Club, 25-3, thus assuring itself of at least a tie for the title. Dixie Polish remained in the running by handing Southwest Merchants a 12-5 setback. Dor-A popped up an otherwise dull day by upsetting Mount Rainier, 10-8, while Swann Service forfeited to Fussell-Young.

Home runs by the Nau boys, "Smitty" and "Buddy," featured the Georgetown victory. "Stump" Talburtt held the losers at bay throughout the fray.

Scarlato, Bookoff, Divver and Curtin provided the punch that enabled Dixie Polish to sweep to victory over the Merchants. "Gabby" Hartnett Schlorb and Smith were best for the losers. A homer propelled over the fence by a certain Mr. Chaney's bat featured Dor-A's victory over its traditional rival.

Dixie Polish has a postponed game remaining with Wheeler Club to be played. Victory for the former will give it a tie with Georgetown for the first half championship.

PALAIS ROYAL WINS.

In a grueling, 11-inning struggle, replete with thrilling plays, Palais Royal defeated the Hecht Co. nine, 3-2, to win the first half championship of the Department Store League. Hurley, pitching for Hechts, allowed only four hits, but three of these were of the extra-base variety by Bowman and figured prominently in the run making. An error in the eleventh inning by Ershan, Hecht second sacker, paved the way for the winning run.

FEDERAL EMPLOYES BOW.

Charlottesville, Va., July 3.—A well-timed bunting attack gave the local Athletics eleven earned runs against the Federal Employe Unionists here today. "Speed" Faulconer, slab ace, held the visitors to three hits and two runs. The game was the first of a two-game series, which will be concluded tomorrow, when the Unionists send Hal Kiesel to the mound in an attempt to gain a deadlock.

DOR-A chalked up its second consecutive victory in the race for the second-half championship of The Post's Capital City Senior League yesterday. Its victim was Swann Service and the score, 13-4. Miller Furniture Co., first-half champions, scored an easy, 13-1, decision over the Takoma Tigers.

Bob Ruble hypnotized the Servicemen with his slants, and held them to five hits. He also drove out a couple of safeties to help win his own game. Hamel's three hits in four tries and home runs by Fera and Haydon contributed to the losing team's downfall.

Turner Boys Rivals On Mound.

Two members of the Turner clan, "Tut" and Charley, pitched for Miller and Takoma, respectively, but "Tut" was more effective than his opponent and was credited with the victory. Charley, usually an effective twirler, seemed to lose his grasp on the situation for a time, and abetted by some errors on the part of his mates fell prey to the slugging Millers. Waverly Wheeler knocked a homer for the winners.

Bunkhill Winner In Legion Upset

Bunker Hill Post upset the dope and Lincoln Post in the American Legion series yesterday. The score was 5-4. Spengler added to its lead by virtue of an 8-7 triumph over George Washington.

Lincoln Post's defeat all but eliminates the team from further consideration as a contender for the second-half title. It tied for the first-half flag with Spengler. Bucholtz made three hits, including a homer, for the winners. Vermillion also contributed a home run to the victory, while Wiles, of the losing team, socked the third circuit blow of the game.

It required the combined efforts of Bieber and Cuozzo to stop George Washington Post. Spengler shoved over its winning run in the ninth inning. Bresnahan was the ringleader of the attack.

Pale Dry, Wonder Midget Nines Win

The National Pale Drys, winners of the first half in the midget division of The Post's Capital City League, made a successful start in the second half title chase yesterday, pinning a 9-2 defeat on a fighting Thompson's Furniture Co. nine. Wonder Bread nosed out Arlington Post, 5-4, in the only other game played in this division.

Gaff's home run featured the Pale Dry attack, Bailey and Wood contributed two hits each. Frank Baroni, on the mound for the winners, checked his opponents with five well scattered hits. Two of these were made by Gunther.

"Zip" Poole's Wonder Breadmen, led by Roddy Bell, were forced to fight every inch of the way for their victory over Arlington Post. The Virginians came within an ace of knotting the count in the eighth and final inning. Bell granted eleven hits, but distributed them in admirable fashion. Triples by Wiles and Wilmeth clinched the decision.

WOMAN HELPS 2 ROB FLORAL SHOP OF $25

Man Ties Downtown Clerk and Escapes With Aids in Taxicab.

The woman robber who has engaged in three holdups within two weeks took an indirect part in a daring daylight robbery in downtown Washington yesterday, when a clerk in the Oehmler Floral Co. shop was robbed of $25.

One of the woman's companions entered the shop and asked Sidney Resnick, 30, of 3042 Wisconsin avenue northwest, the clerk, to show him some roses.

As Resnick went to the rear of the store, which is at 1223 G street northwest, the man pressed a gun into his back and ordered him to lie down on the floor. The robber tied him with cord and extracted $10 from his pockets and $15 from the cash register.

He then ran from the store and escaped in a taxicab in which were seated the woman and another man who had acted as lookouts. Resnick was unable to give a description of the man and woman in the cab; but the manner in which the robbery was executed resembled the holdups in which a woman and two men have participated within the last two weeks.

The man who committed the holdup was described by Resnick as 24 years old, 5 feet 5 inches in height, weighing 150 pounds, having dark hair and dark complexion. He was unshaven and was wearing a reddish brown suit, black shoes and no hat.

Girl in Dice Game Is Shot by Escort

Wounding Is Laid to Man After Request for Loan Is Refused.

A dice game in which colored men and women participated led to a shooting yesterday when Rose West, colored, 19 years old, of 1205 Fifth street northwest, was shot in the left shoulder by her escort when she refused to lend him money so that he could rejoin the game.

Both had been participating in the game, and Douglas Berham, 22 years old, of 1410 P street northwest, went broke. She refused to lend money to him. He grabbed her purse and shot her in the shoulder, police say.

She was taken to Freedmen's Hospital. He was taken to the Tenth Precinct Station and held for investigation. The shooting occurred at Eleventh and Fairmont streets northwest. Claudia and Alethea Reves, both colored, of 2701 Eleventh street northwest, were charged with permitting gaming.

FOUNDLINGS' HOME HAS HEAT ANTIDOTE

48 Youngsters Cared For Is Low Total, but High Spirits Abound.

Playing on the side of a beautiful hill at 4610 Forty-second street northwest, the 48 youngsters at the Washington Home for Foundlings are having the time of their lives during hot weather. Attired in "sun suits," to which there is much more "sun" than "suit," they cavort gaily under the special shower rigged in the yard for them, do various athletic stunts, crowd into the "jungle pen," ride the merry-go-round and otherwise chase the heat away.

Strange to say the number of youngsters at the home has decreased, in spite of the depression. Miss L. Elizabeth Thomas, superintendent, attributes the falling off in numbers to the fact that women are deciding to stay with their husbands and keep their homes together rather than leave, place the children in a home and take up the uncertain proposition of finding a job at this time.

Home Well Equipped.

The home has a capacity of 57 children and this has been stretched to accommodate 60 during the winter months, Miss Thomas says. But what they lack in numbers now these youngsters make up in activity. It would be hard to imagine any more riotous group than that which greeted the reporter.

The home itself is lovely. Constructed of brick and stone, it is equipped with every modern improvement for the care of children. The kitchen provides a special diet for children and any little one requiring still further specialized food gets it. The dormitories with their little beds are spotless and offer the utmost in fresh air to the sleeping children. Trained nurses are in charge of the smaller children and they are as carefully watched as children in their own homes—more carefully, in many instances.

Only One For Adoption.

The home takes in orphans, half-orphans and children of divorced parents for pay for their upkeep. The depression has struck the home in this particular. Many who formerly paid have either been forced, through reductions in salaries or loss of jobs, to reduce payments, and some of them have just quit altogether.

In spite of all this, there is only one child, a boy of three years, available for adoption at the home. The officials are very careful in the matter of adoptions, making a careful investigation of the home to which the child is going, and investigating the character and circumstances of the couple which seek to adopt the child.

All of the youngsters who have reached the age where they know the meaning of the word "watermelon" are looking eagerly forward to a watermelon feast which is to be served on the front lawn of the home today in celebration of the Fourth.

FIREWORKS RESULT IN INJURIES TO SIX

Hands of Boy, 8, May Be Amputated Because of Cracker Explosion.

Casualties resulting from premature Fourth of July celebration increased yesterday as six persons suffered injuries from firework explosions.

A firecracker exploded in the hands of Francis Morgan Garner, 8, of 766 Sixth street southeast. Physicians at Providence Hospital said amputation of his hands may be necessary. The boy threw the firecracker into a bonfire, and picked it up when it failed to explode immediately. It went off while he was holding it.

Sarah Harris, 9, 622 Morton street northwest, was burned on the forehead when a firecracker, thrown into the street by a neighbor, struck the child.

Fireworks thrown from Key Bridge exploded near Milville Keer, 49, 514 Twelfth street northeast, who was walking along K street, under the bridge, and particles of the explosive caused lacerations to his right hand. He was treated at Georgetown Hospital.

Thomas Daniels, 10, 1353 First street southwest, and Moses Basle, 8, both colored, were burned about the face when the powder of a firecracker was ignited by Daniels' brother. They were treated at the Emergency Hospital. Gertrude Moore, 18, colored, 308 Eighth street northeast, was treated at Casualty Hospital for powder burns to her right eye.

Civil Service Body Attacks Coaching

Schools Selling Courses Are Declared to Be Committing Fraud.

The Civil Service Commission will press its publicity campaign recently launched against civil service coaching schools whose operations are alleged to be unwarranted during the present unemployment period, it was announced yesterday.

Because of the scarcity of jobs in the department it was declared that institutions selling such courses were accepting "money under false pretenses."

To the many persons who have written the department telling of their intention of subscribing for a course and asking the advice of the department, a form letter is being mailed, discouraging such action and advising that if the rewards of the course have been misrepresented to them the department will investigate.

Man Beaten by 5 In Mystery Attack

Victim Believes Intruders Mistook Him for Someone Else.

James W. Stevens, 33, was the object of a mysterious assault last night by five men who broke into his room at 2108 Eighteenth street northwest. He is in undetermined condition in Garfield Hospital for internal injuries.

Stevens was at a loss to explain the assault, other than advance the belief that his assailants had mistaken him for someone else. He was asleep when they broke in, he said. After striking him with their fists they threw him to the floor and jumped on him.

He managed to reach the street and a taxicab driver took him to the hospital. Stevens is a barber.

LESSON IN RELIGION SEEN IN PATRIOTISM

Grace Episcopal Rector Says Christ Was True Lover of Country.

"It seems fitting that on this Sunday preceding the Fourth of July that we should think of this great national holiday and its relation to the Church, and the spiritual life that the church helps to cultivate," said the Rev. Meade Bolton MacBryde, rector of Grace Episcopal Church in his yesterday morning sermon.

Mr. MacBryde took as his text a part of the fifth verse of the fifty-eighth chapter of the Book of Isaiah, "Will Thou call this an acceptable day to the Lord." He said in part:

"Tomorrow everyone, in his own individual way, will celebrate the Fourth of July. The Fourth of July has always been kept as a holiday since America won her independence and the mere mention of the day brings to our minds the memory of a noisy celebration."

Lifting National Thought.

"We hear again the bands playing the National airs, we see the flags flying and hear again the flowery utterances of the orators of the day, stirring up the kind of patriotism that is fed on talk of the national pride and the Nation's wealth, talk that is apt to be but noise and materialize into nothing of any consequence.

"While I would in no way discourage or disparage these attempts to kindle in man's heart the spirit of patriotism, I do feel strongly that the true meaning and the true glory of such a day comes home to men only in proportion as they grasp its true significance and lift the thoughts of a Nation up to God.

Patriotism Christian Virtue.

"If as a Nation we realized our responsibility to God and visioned our privileges as gifts from on high, if, along with our national life, there could go a deeper intent in the spiritual life, if "the things of Caesar and the things of God,' could be brought closer together, then there could be more national consciousness of the true power of religion. Some religious people make the mistake of forgetting that patriotism is a Christian virtue, and that the deities of the state are not only mentioned but insisted upon by new testament writers.

"Some people have the idea that a class of persons called politicians are the ones to attend to the affairs of the state, as a tailor attends to a man's wardrobe, or a plumber to water fixtures, or a teacher to education.

"Every man and woman should feel an interest in political affairs for according to a man's position and influence in the community will God hold him responsible for neglecting his duty to the state.

Man's True Aim Defined.

"If the true patriot and all that that term stands for, could supplant the corrupt politician then would result a healthier and a cleaner condition. Much is being done along this line in the public schools when the children are taught how and why they should be good citizens, fair-minded voters and conscientious taxpayers.

"What is most needed in every field are men of intelligence and honor who are above being bribed who can not be intimidated and who will be just in their dealings with the fellowman.

"The real true purpose of such a historic celebration, as that which will be celebrated tomorrow, will be entirely lost unless it awakens in man a sincere desire to combine the material and the spiritual, not to let 'the things of Caesar' predominate but, affiliate with 'the things of God.' Christ was a patriot of patriots and to follow Him in all things should be man's true aim."

McKee was found Friday night in his apartment, at 1900 H street northwest, by a friend. He had become ill and was unable to summon help. He was taken to Emergency Hospital and later transferred to Gallinger.

Girl, Driving Car, Loses Spirited Race to 4 Police

Two Autos and Two Motorcycles Halt Alleged Liquor-Laden Machine After Wild Dash Through Georgetown Into Virginia.

A slip of a girl, at the wheel of an allegedly liquor-laden automobile, last night matched her driving ability against four policemen, and in a spirited chase lasting more than 20 minutes, held her own until forced from the road in nearby Virginia.

The suspicions of two Seventh Precinct policemen, Privates A. H. Pruesser and E. E. Devey, led to a pursuit that ended only when the latter's car crashed into the fleeing machine on Military road in nearby Virginia.

The policemen first sighted the car at Potomac and Prospect avenues northwest. A young girl was in the driver's seat, while two men bent over an object in the rear. Devey was taking Pruesser to his police car, which was parked only a few feet from the suspicious machine.

As the policemen approached, the girl started the engine and drove off. Shouting for Devey to follow the car, Pruesser leaped for his own machine, and the chase was on.

Through traffic-jammed streets of Georgetown the three cars raced. Onto Pennsylvania avenue and across Key Bridge the pursuit continued. As the cars roared through Rosslyn, two Virginia policemen took out on their motorcycles.

Behind the speeding machines, on Key Bridge, motorists were attempting to right their cars, forced up on the sidewalk when the pursued machine, followed by the police cars with sirens screeching, passed by.

The three cars and two motorcycles aped almost a mile down Military road. Finally Pvt. Devey drew abreast of the fleeing machine. He cut in front of it, forcing the two cars to collide. The police car was badly damaged.

En route to the Seventh Precinct Station, one of the men in the alleged liquor car escaped. The other was caught by Private Devey after a foot race. A case of alleged liquor was thrown from the pursued car during the chase.

The girl said she was Frances P. Windsor, 23, of 410 Sixth street northwest. Her companion gave his name as Stanley Gray, 29, of the same address. She was charged with speeding 55 miles an hour and passing a red light and stop sign. Gray was booked for breaking glass in the street.

CATHOLICS DISCUSS LIFE AFTER DEATH

Talk on Soul's Immortality Made to Evidence Guild by James A. Nolan.

In an age in which "men appear to know all things, there is still no problem which holds so much interest as the simple question of the immortality of the soul," James Allen Nolan, of Catholic University, observed at a meeting yesterday afternoon of the Catholic Evidence Guild at Catholic University.

The guild, made of laymen and women, organized to teach Catholic doctrine, also heard an explanation of the Catholic doctrine of the Eucharist from William McKee, of Georgetown University.

"From a study of the nature of the intellect, or the soul or psyche, as it is termed, we find the sole scientific proof that life exists after the death of the body," Mr. Nolan declared.

"The intellect must not be confused with the brain," he pointed out. "The only scientific means of knowing the nature of the intellect is to determine how it acts, just as the only means the physicist has of knowing electricity, or the biologist of knowing life, is by its actions.

"The activity of the intellect, in its apprehension of knowledge, shows that it exists in itself, independent of the body, that it differs from the body in the fact that it is not material, but a nonmaterial or spiritual thing, and that it can not be dismembered as the body can. Being independent of matter, and a substance which can not be broken into parts, modern science does attest the fact that the intellect does not cease to exist when man dies."

Rev. William E. La Rue Calls Famous Hymn Inspiring; Praises Author.

"Tomorrow we shall reach the one hundredth anniversary of the first public singing of our great and thrilling patriotic hymn, 'America,' written by the Rev. Samuel Francis Smith, a Baptist minister," said the Rev. La Rue, preaching yesterday morning at the Takoma Park Baptist Church.

"The hymn was first sung on July 4, 1832, by a chorus of children in Park street, Boston. The singing of this hymn has touched the very life of our Nation through the countless millions of voices, in times of peace and war, which have sung, 'My Country, 'Tis of Thee.'

"It is sung with equal fervor by Catholic, Jew and Protestant. It is a song well adapted to express our love of our country and of our faith in the Almighty, who, through the ideal of liberty, has blessed us with such a glorious inheritance.

Seen As Beautiful Tie.

"Some have viewed with regret that the national tune of America and Britain is the same. On the contrary the author looked upon it as a new and beautiful tie between the mother country and her daughter, the one furnishing the music, if indeed it goes back to English sources, and the other the words," Mr. La Rue said.

"The singing of this hymn we have found to be signally appropriate for all patriotic occasions. It gathers up and gives expression to our heartfelt sentiments as no other song does. The writing of this song has made the author famous around the world and will perpetuate his name to coming ages.

"The author was born in Boston in 1808 and died in 1895. He was a member of the 1829 class at Harvard, two of his notable classmates being Oliver Wendell Holmes and James Freeman Clarke. He had a lifelong friendship with John G. Whittier.

"Mr. Smith was brought up in the environment of a Christian home. The historical background was such as to make a deep impression upon his early life. The period was full of patriotic stir.

Temperance Reform in Air.

"Temperance reform also was in the air. The American Revolution was near enough to be still fresh. As a schoolboy he would constantly be reminded of great events as he passed the old State House and historic Faneuil Hall, the "Cradle of Liberty." He was born almost under the shadow of Bunker Hill. In 1830 the Webster-Hayne debate on the Constitution took place in Congress and in 1831 Garrison began the publication of the Liberator, demanding the immediate emancipation of slaves. The historic background helps to explain the liberty current that runs so tensely through 'America.'

"Added to this was the author's religious convictions. As a Baptist he held to the fundamental teaching of the absolute liberty and competency of the human soul before God. He knew well the struggles of his Baptist forefathers toward the ideal of civil religious liberty. Hence, as a gifted young man of 24 years, he could speak of our country as the 'Sweet Land of Liberty.' Truly this man has contributed a great hymn and the greatest reason for that is the fact that he possessed a great soul."

Apartment Robbery Nets $150

David Slackman yesterday reported that about $150 in $5, $10 and $20 bills was removed from his apartment on the second floor of 1137 First street northwest. Entrance, he said was gained through a bathroom window, which was open. Money and papers were taken from the pockets of a pair trousers in the bedroom.

WASHINGTON IS PAID TRIBUTE BY CADMAN

Was Always True to Self, Radio Preacher Tells Group at Cathedral.

Tribute to the character and patriotism of George Washington was paid by the Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, radio preacher for the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, in a sermon yesterday afternoon in the choir of Washington Cathedral, held in cooperation with the George Washington Bicentennial Commission.

The secret of George Washington's ascendency was ascribed by Dr. Cadman to the fact that "he was always true to his fundamental self, and more careful of his conscience than of the opinions of his fellow men.

"He had the resolution to be what so few of us are," Dr. Cadman declared, "proudly independent of the prejudices, passions and half-baked theories surrounding him. His unswerving allegiance to what he conceived his duty imparted a marvelous magnetism even to his limitations.

"Not the least cause for thankfulness today is that the God who vouchsafed Washington to our direct need, will, in His infinite goodness, continue to be gracious to a penitent and believing America; an America determined to silence the demagogue, the charlatan and the spoilsman, an America set against the crime which stains its very soul, an America worthy of that great patrician of political integrity—President Washington.

"To be sure we still suffer collapses of the public good traceable to greed, folly and ethical stupidity. The churl and the clown still gain official preferment. Rogues still flourish in high places, and betray the trust of those who elevate them. Nevertheless, ignorance, insolence, flippancy and downright treachery are always liable to encounter the spirit of Washington engendered in our Republic, and when they do, it is nightfall for them."

Jesus Able to Lead World From Crisis, Says Pastor

God Has Way of Appearing Just When People Need Him Most, Dr. W. A. Shelton Tells Mount Vernon Place Methodists.

"When people are paralyzed with fear and covered with shame by their dismal failures, and when their hope, ambition and initiative is dead and every door is closed, God has a way of suddenly appearing in the midst and providing the dynamic forces that drive the souls of men to new endeavors and new heights," said the Rev. Dr. W. A. Shelton, preaching yesterday morning at the Mount Vernon Place Methodist Episcopal Church South.

"The world has ever and again seemed to face complete collapse," Dr. Shelton declared. "Civilization goes on in waves. There is the crest of the wave when we seem to be sweeping onward toward the very mountain peaks and the trough of the wave when we seem sinking back into oblivion. Glorious empires of long ago seemed destined to immortality, but were lost in the sands of time.

"But across these sands of time came other caravans, bearing new merchandise in the realm of human values, only to be lost in the same way, but at a higher place. Thus, step by step, civilization has been builded, like coral islands upon the dead institutions of the past.

"The present situation, the most discouraging that has arisen in this generation, leaves the mind dazed and uncertain. It is one of those sudden and unexpected collapses that has come over and over again in the world's history.

"God uses the lowly of earth to open the doors of opportunity and inspire hope and courage when everything else has failed. Jesus comes to the individual suddenly and unexpectedly."

"Many crises of Christian history have left the world for the time prostrate and hopeless and then into the closed doors of human endeavor God has come with men like Francis of Assissi, and Luther and Calvin and Wesley.

"War has been the first cause of crisis. War is a mother who spawns an evil brood. Her first born child is hate, and then comes greed, and disintegration, and pestilence and moral break-up, and the whole fabric of human society is undermined.

"We stand today at the parting of the ways. Crime is rampant. Moral standards have been more or less thrown to the winds, expediency dominates the leadership of America. Selfishness seems to have been enthroned. The distress of the poor, the uncertainty and hopelessness of the laboring man, the dark fear that falls before us as we look to the future, the doors seem closing upon us again.

"Fear has seized upon the world. The collapse of plans and programs has sent humanity with shamed faces walking softly in the gathering shadows. But there will be the faithful who rally and into their midst will come again Jesus, who is able to lift the world out of its miasmic pools, lead it out of its dismal swamps, and light its darkness with hope and courage to carry on.

"May we not say once again, 'The Lord is my Shepherd. I shall not want, and though I walk through the valley of the shadow I will fear no evil, for Thou art with me.'"

Man Gains Bed in Hospital On Hurt Wooden Leg Hoax

The whining voice of a man, who sounded as if he was in the throes of agony, pleaded with the operator at Walter Reed: "Please help me. My knee has given out again. I am at Georgia avenue and Upshur street. I am a patient at your hospital."

With visions of a broken-legged convalescent fallen in the streets, the Medical Officer roused the ambulance driver from bed and sent him post haste for the patient.

Gently the doctors lifted Jerry J. Knedlick, '47, of Chicago, from the curb into the ambulance. He was writhing as if in pain and holding his left leg.

"You're not a patient at Walter Reed," said the ambulance driver.

"Well, I was in 1931," he moaned.

On the operating table the pain-wracked groans continued. Timidly the medical officer slit the leg of Knedlick's trousers so as not to cause any more pain than necessary.

A startled look spread over the doctor's face.

"Why, man, you have a wooden leg right up to the hip, how could your left knee pain you?" he asked.

"Oh," exclaimed the absent-minded patient, with a sheepish grin. "It must be the other leg."

They could find nothing wrong with the right leg, so they decided all Knedlick wanted was a bed for the night.

As he pulled the sheets over his body, he winked sagely at the other patients. He lost his leg in a railroad accident several years ago.

Man Seized as Alleged Rum Is Delivered to His Home

Less than two hours after the fire rescue squad had revived him from inhalation of gas, police arrested Herbert D. Cooper, 26 years old, of 1220 Jefferson street northwest, when an alleged runner for a bootlegger attempted to make a delivery at his house.

Cooper was found by his wife with his head near an open gas jet. He was revived. Then police learned that a delivery of liquor was about to be made at his house.

Patrolman Robert Browning followed the alleged bootlegger's runner into the house. As they entered a room, William C. Trigger, 21 years old, of 2020 Douglas street northeast, broke three pint bottles.

Browning arrested Trigger and charged him with assault while trying to resist arrest and pressed a charge of disorderly conduct against him for his actions in the house. Cooper was charged with investigation and was later released.
